DEAD MAN IN MURDER PROBE IS REVEALED

Police issue public appeal for information

William Mata

william.mata@hertsexnews.co.uk

DETECTIVES investigating the death of a 53-year-old man found with serious head injuries at a house in Old Harlow have named the dead man as Stephen Case.

Officers were sent to the property in The Hoo shortly after 1am on Tuesday after paramedics answering an emergency call reported that a man was unconscious.

Mr Case was taken to Princess Alexandra Hospital where he died at 8.30am. A post mortem examination proved inconclusive and further tests will be carried out to establish the cause of his death.

A 49-year-old man was arrested at the scene on suspicion of murder and taken to Harlow police station for questioning. He was released on bail yesterday (Wednesday) until September 9 while the police investigation continues.

In a tribute released through Essex Police, Mr Case's family described him as a "fun, bubbly and fabulous man".

"We are really shocked and greatly saddened by the loss of our dad, grandad and friend, especially in these circumstances," the statement read. "He will be greatly missed."

DIED IN HOSPITAL: Stephen Case

Police cordoned off the property whilst forensic investigations took place and house-to-house inquiries were carried out.

Investigation

Within hours, detectives from the Kent and Essex Serious Crime Directorate confirmed they had launched a murder investigation.

Detective Inspector Morgan Cronin, who is heading up the investigation, said: "The victim was found unconscious but sadly died in hospital this morning.

"We have made a number of inquiries and these will continue. I would ask that anybody who has any information that may help our investigation who has not already spoken to police to get in contact."

People living in the quiet residential area of the old town, which is close to Harlow Mill station, spoke of their shock.

One neighbour told the Star: "This is a very nice area where nothing ever happens. There were two police cars, one in the front of the house and one in the road.

"There were a couple of officers wandering about in the road."

■ Anyone with information which could help the investigation should contact Essex Police on the non-emergency 101 number or email SCDappeals@essex.pnn.police.uk

Keyboard wizard Ciaran shines at championships

A YOUNG musician scored several successes when he took part in the UK championships of the National Accordion Organisation held in Liverpool.

Ciaran Gilligan, 10, finished first in the higher elementary category in which he competed against 15-16 year-olds. He also won trophies in the 10-11 age group, taking home two firsts and two seconds during the two-day championships earlier this month.

Ciaran, of Redricks Lane, Sawbridgeworth, started playing the accordion five years ago and recently passed his Grade four examination with merit. His interest began when he was playing the piano at school and was introduced to the instrument by teacher, Michelle Langman.

His success has caught the attention of his classmates at High Wycombe Primary School where he is a pupil.

His mother, Tina, said, "It has encouraged lots of other children there to play. Ciaran has made the accordion the in thing."

Ciaran was accompanied to the championships by his mum and dad but his success was tinged with sadness as his godfather, Bill Quigg, who always supported him, passed away before the event.

"He was a big part of Ciaran's life and it was a real disappointment to Ciaran he couldn't be there," said Mrs Gilligan.

Support for crisis talks over shops

Traders and shoppers back florist's call for action

William Mata

william.mata@hertssexnews.co.uk

A CALL by Harlow's longest serving trader for a crisis meeting to discuss the future of the town centre has won support from other retailers and shoppers.

Florist Bernard Chapman, who runs a shop in West Walk, described the area as a disaster and said urgent action was necessary to address the crisis.

The loss of Marks and Spencer and the imminent closure of Robert Dyas has left traders in the The High feeling "neglected", with the Water Gardens and out-of-town centres drawing customers away.

Mr Chapman's concerns, reported in last week's Star, were echoed by other shop owners.

Tina Higginson, who runs Flirt Studios in West Walk, said: "If you paid our rates in The Water Gardens you wouldn't mind, but not up here. It's frustrating and you look outside and wonder what it's for."

Viola Pietrzak, owner of Nutricastle Supplements in West Gate, added: "The business rates are really high. Independent shops like ours should be encouraged as, they bring excitement and variety."

Shoppers have taken to the Star's Facebook page to support Mr Chapman's call for a meeting. Liam Boylan wrote: "If that end was regenerated it would improve the whole town, especially Broad Walk. The last attempt at putting giant flowerpots just shows how inept and out of the touch the council and the politicians are."

Jessica Mary commented: "With the lack of decent shops it is becoming a food court rather than a shopping centre. Car parking is too expensive."

A council spokesperson said: "We recognise that parts of the town centre need serious investment and the council has set aside £1m to support the regeneration of the northern part."

"We welcome the £10m Harvey Centre investment which will provide a new cinema and restaurants and believe this demonstrates positive confidence town centre's future."

"Last year to revitalise the market the council expanded its market into the northern end of Broad Walk and this has worked well. The nature of town centres up and down the country are changing and Harlow Council is confident that it can work together with landowners and traders to bring regeneration and meet future growth and demands."

A spokesman from Addington Capital, which owns and manages the Harvey Centre, said the new cinema and restaurant plan would transform the centre.

"We are committed to regenerating the Harvey Centre," he added. "We believe this leisure complex will boost the local economy and encourage wider investment in the town as a whole."

Traffic to be diverted for five months during bridge replacement

MOTORISTS driving between Harlow and Hoddesdon are being warned to expect months of delays because of roadworks at Dobbs Weir.

The bridge connecting Dobbs Weir Road and Essex Road at the Fish and Eels pub will be closed for 21 weeks while contractors Ringway Jacobs, working for Essex County Council, replace the existing structure.

The work is due to start on Monday, July 27.

Traffic will be diverted via Station Road in Broxbourne, adding up to seven miles to journeys from Dobbs Weir to Hoddesdon.

Work to replace the bridge has been in the pipeline for more than two years but has been delayed because planning permission was initially rejected.

Negotiate

Meetings have been held with neighbouring businesses and Nazeing and Roydon parish councillors to negotiate the timing of the works. The Canals Trust expressed a preference for winter while local residents pressed for the summer when there would be fewer vehicles during the school holidays.

The current bridge, which is only safe for carrying vehicles up to 7.5 tonnes but is regularly used by heavy goods vehicles and lorries, will be replaced with a metal, pre-stressed structure which will include access for pedestrians.

Mark Pyatt, of the Dobbs Weir Residents' Association said: "It is very old and takes a beating from the lorries."

He added: "People will have terrible journeys trying to get to school and to work."

It is estimated the new bridge will be ready for use by Monday, December 21.

591 pubs down, just 39 to go in Cathy's epic Red Lion crawl

A MOTHER-of-one on a quest to visit every Red Lion pub in the country got a warm welcome when she arrived in Harlow on Saturday.

Cathy Price, 56, dropped in at the Red Lion in Potter Street – the 591st on her epic pub crawl – and was greeted by cheering staff who presented her with a special cake to celebrate her visit.

Cathy, from Preston, began her tour in 2011. She is set to complete it this summer when she visits the 630th Red Lion pub in Northmoor, Oxfordshire.

The personal trainer has travelled all over the UK, from Penzance to Aberdeen, and has also been to several Red Lion pubs in Europe. She even found Red Lions in Dubai and in New York.

"In the early days people didn't take me seriously," she said, "but as more people caught onto this I began to get a better reception."

Speaking before her arrival in Harlow she said she was looking forward to visiting the town which was her last stop in Essex.

"I'm not sure what they have in mind but some of the owners have contacted me and asked me for a bit of notice as to when I was coming," she said. "It was nice of them to think of me."

Pub manager Noel Loughran said: "Someone came in and told me about it; they said it was on her website. The Red Lion is the most popular name for a pub in the UK, there are hundreds of them."

In every pub she goes to Ms Price takes a photo of herself and usually orders her favourite half pint of ale.

She embarked on her quest after watching the Grand National at a Red Lion pub in Hawkeshead in Cumbria and found information about there being Red Lion pubs all around the UK.

Foodbank makes plea for help finding storage

Charity will lose the use of existing warehouse to development

Gemma Gardner

gemma.gardner@hertsexnews.co.uk

THE team behind Harlow Foodbank is calling on the community to help find the charity permanent storage space.

Since it launched in 2009, the foodbank has been operating from a temporary space at the Lok'nStore building in Edinburgh Way, but redevelopment means it will not be available from the end of the year.

Gary Knott, the foodbank's director of community services, said: "We are looking out for a local community-focused company which could help us with this provision so we are asking people to pass on this information to their work colleagues, friends and family."

He added: "Lok'nStore have been very supportive over the years and we'd like to thank them for that."

Figures released by the Trussell Trust, which has 445 foodbanks run in its name, show that a total of 3,781 people received three days' emergency food in Harlow in the past 12 months.

HUNGRY FOR MORE ROOM: Harlow foodbank members Mike Ruocco, Jerry Crawford, Lee Horton, Karen Brady and Sue Unwin

Picture: Arnella Bullett

Of these, 2,514 were adults and 1,267 children.

The figures show a three per cent rise in demand compared to the previous financial year.

Mr Knott added: "Last year local people donated more than 67 tonnes of non-perishable food to Harlow Foodbank, and more than 100 people volunteered.

"Local schools, businesses and faith groups have provide vital support to the foodbank, enabling us to give three days nutritionally-balanced food and support to people in crisis."

Over the past 12 months, 38 per cent of those who used the foodbank were referred as a result of benefit delays and some 14 per cent of referrals were people on low incomes. There was also a staggering 103 per cent increase in domestic violence referrals.

Qualified teacher and mother-of-two Susan had to call on the services of the foodbank.

"I have an 18-month-old son and an eight-year-old stepson. I work part-time as a teacher and my husband has an insecure agency contract. There are times when he doesn't get enough hours of work, and we really struggle to afford food and pay the bills."

Table

"The foodbank meant we could put food on the table."

As well as providing emergency food, Harlow Foodbank provides essentials like toiletries and hygiene products. It also works with six primary schools in the town to provide breakfast clubs.

Any new warehouse location will need to be more than 2,000 square feet and on the ground floor, with good access for food deliveries.

Town centre is depressing

SIR As a Harlow resident for more than 40 years I have to agree with Bernard Chapman (Star, April 23) that the town is looking awful. With so many shops boarded up and now Little Walk being closed it has become depressing to walk through the town centre.

It seems the only investment area is the Water Gardens and everyone else has been priced out.

We do not know who is in control of letting the units but it makes no sense to close them all down and have no income unless they feel they can make a big profit on building private flats and charge high rents, the same as they are doing in London.

S. Clark
address supplied

SIR I totally agree with Bernard Chapman that our town is going downhill and fast.

There is no market, rubbish everywhere and shops that have been in the town for years closing. Little Walk has been shut off, and nothing is being done to it.

Go to Chelmsford where all our tax money goes to be distributed and you will find a fine town with a huge market, and great shops including a Debenhams, which we have been promised in Harlow for years. How is it that?

Chelmsford can find the money to keep its city centre prosperous yet Harlow Council is not able to do anything?

Like Mr Chapman I would like to have a meeting with the people responsible to find out why the hell we are going backwards. I have lived in this town for 55 years now and can honestly say it was better then than now and that is a very sad state of affairs.

G. Harris

We must build council homes

SIR The lack of decent homes is one of the country's most serious social problems and Harlow is not exempt. Yet Conservative housing policy is almost guaranteed to make things worse.

The ill-thought-out right to buy council houses, introduced by Margaret Thatcher, bears a large share of the blame for today's problems. Of 1.88 million sold since 1980, only 345,000 have been replaced.

Furthermore a third of those sold are now in the hands of private landlords, with high rents often paid by housing benefit.

Extending the right to buy to housing association tenants, as now proposed, will be even worse. It is questionable if it is even legal; the government does not own these properties and has no right to use taxpayers' money to subsidise their sale at the expense of the community in general, including those in housing need.

Housing associations exist to provide homes at reasonable cost for the many ordinary families who cannot get on the housing ladder any other way, not to implement policies which are no less than a bribe to encourage some people to vote Tory.

Anyone in housing need, whose children are in housing need or who simply recognises these facts and about really solving our housing problems, must vote against this disastrous policy on May 7.

Of course, the fundamental need is for a massive building programme including a majority of council houses for rent. And when they are built it must be recognised that they are a permanent community asset, not to be sold to recreate yet another housing problem in the future.

Delivering on promises

SIR Like most people I have become weary of all this never-ending election campaign.

My parents taught me that we should judge people not by what they say but by what they have done. It is so easy to promise the earth but without a track record of solid achievement we should be very doubtful about the ability of politicians to deliver on those easy made promises.

As a Conservative I am perhaps biased, but in Robert Halfon we have a politician who has proven time after time that he can deliver on his promises.

Whether it was on new jobs, more apprenticeships, freezing of Labour's fuel duty tax, capping of hospital car parking charges, free school meals for disadvantaged 16/17-year-old students at Harlow College, reducing bingo tax and attracting to Harlow a new university technical college, he has delivered.

The Sun newspaper described him as a crusader who has fought hard to make sure struggling Brits have more money in their pockets. This might explain why so many Labour supporters have told me they will be breaking the habit of a lifetime by re-electing Robert as the MP for Harlow.

Guy Mitchinson
Joyner's Field, Harlow

These are the ways forward

SIR Liam Byrne's note to his successor at the Treasury in which he said "there is no money left" was certainly very silly (Letters, April 23) but, more importantly, it was not true.

Money has no value in itself. Real wealth consists of goods and services that contribute to human wellbeing and the wherewithal to create more such goods and services. The basic inputs for this purpose are raw materials, energy and human skill and labour.

The role of money is to control the distribution of these inputs and their outputs. It is created every time a bank makes a loan not covered by its deposits. And, of course, the quantitative easing by the Bank of England which rescued the banks after the 2008 crash was simply electronic printing of money, made necessary by their profligate lending to financially unsound recipients.

It should also be noted that the economic growth praised by Keith Bragg is largely the result of immigration increasing the size of the workforce, since GDP per capita, ie productivity, has not increased.

On the question of petrol prices (Letters, April 23), there are wider issues than Guy Mitchinson's journey to work and who imposed higher fuel taxes. It has been authoritatively stated that 80 per cent of known fossil fuel reserves must stay in the ground if global temperature rise is to be limited to 2C – itself bad enough but more would be catastrophic.

While it would no doubt be unpopular and may cause hardship for some individuals in the short term, energy policy at all levels must be focused on reducing demand for fossil fuels, not encouraging more use by reducing prices.

Increasing energy efficiency in all spheres, a return to Harlow's original concept of a self-contained and balanced community for living and working and development of renewable energy – these are the real ways forward.

Frank Jackson
Kingsmoor Road, Harlow

Let's keep our society decent

SIR There are many decent and fair-minded people who are thinking of voting Tory because they genuinely believe the £12bn cut in welfare they are planning is both possible and necessary because there are so many benefit scroungers.

But I ask them to reflect on this – any system of care for those who have fallen on hard times will inevitably attract people seeking to exploit it. There are benefit scroungers and it would be churlish to pretend otherwise, but the belief they make up a large number or even the majority is the product of clever Tory manipulation of ideas.

They are not able to produce any information to back this up. Instead they rely on isolated but high profile cases and on TV programmes that highlight the few to make good television that stereotype all.

The great bulk of welfare spending goes to support people whose lot is hard and not of their choosing. The Tories would rather see that £12bn being made available for tax cuts, most of which will go to their very rich friends.

Of course we must deal with the scroungers whenever they have been found out, but I urge

WHAT ROBERT HALFON IS PROUD TO HAVE SUPPORTED:

Cutting and freezing fuel duty, which is now 20p per litre cheaper than under Labour's plans.

Introducing an annual banker's tax, raising £2.5-3 billion each year to fund emergency services, such as the Herts & Essex Air Ambulance.

Free School Meals extended to disadvantaged young people at Further Education Colleges, such as Harlow College.

Investing an extra £12.7 billion into the NHS, giving us 9000 extra doctors and 7000 extra nurses since 2010.

No requirement to use Twitter

SIR As a young first time voter in Harlow, I was surprised to read Sam Cunningham's letter in last week's Star ("Young voters will be heard", April 23). Parliamentary candidates are not required to have Twitter accounts – it is a personal social network.

I know Robert Halfon is easily contactable by email or phone instead as he has answered many of my own queries whilst he has been both an MP and a candidate.

He has done a lot of good for young people in this town including building the UTC, championing apprenticeships, and going out of his way to help anyone who asks.

Though my family have always been Labour supporters, he will definitely have my support in the upcoming General Election for all the genuine hard work he puts into Harlow.

Hannah Ellis
Guilfords, Old Harlow

Fuel tax cut was three per cent

SIR Isn't it annoying when someone pours the cold water of fact to ruin a good story? Last week saw the usual litany of half-truths and misinformation that appears at elections time.

Take for example the letter about VAT on domestic fuel. Whilst it is perfectly true that Labour reduced VAT on household bills to five per cent, it was only from eight and not 17.5 per cent as stated in the letter. VAT on fuel has never been at the standard rate of 17.5 per cent.

Now, with more people in work than ever, zero inflation and more people treated by the NHS than ever before by record numbers of staff, the coalition government must have got some things right.

Do we want to risk all this progress with a minority Labour government controlled from Scotland?

Simon Carter
Mark Hall Moors, Harlow

Put an end to Tory austerity

SIR I would urge readers to remember two very short-lived ideals of the coalition government – 'The Big Society' which, of course, never happened, and 'We're all in it together' which, of course, we never were.

Both ideals were much trumpeted by the coalition and our own Robert Halfon at the beginning of their tenure, only to become an embarrassment to them as the implementation of their austerity measures so divided the nation that it made any further reference to them transparently hypocritical. No wonder they are now never mentioned.

We now have a chancellor who has reduced the income tax rate for the country's richest and a prime minister who, when questioned by Jeremy Paxman, seemed as a loss to learn that nearly one million of his fellow citizens do not have enough to eat and rely on foodbanks to see them through.

With the connivance of the Liberal Democrats the ideologically inspired austerity measures have hit the most vulnerable in our society the hardest.

What has made it ten times worse, however, is the self-satisfied way in which David Cameron, George Osborne and Iain Duncan-Smith et al have set about the task, giving every appearance of their having actually enjoyed doing it.

Don't be fooled by their election blandishments. Given the chance, they will repeat the same again for another five years and we owe it to the most vulnerable amongst us to stop them.

David Ives
Bishopsfield, Harlow

Strong economy is the only way

SIR The Labour Party have been in power many times since 1924 and after each term of office the country has been close to financial ruin.

The only way this country can be great again is by a growing economy where we reduce and clear our debts.

Then we can have a thriving population with services like the NHS fully funded and functioning properly.

This is something Labour has never learned in 90 years in government. Are we going to let them wreck our economy again?

David Carter
address supplied

The truth behind jobless figures

SIR Robert Halfon claims the jobless total in the area has dropped by 60 per cent but the Office for National Statistics figure is actually 20 per cent.

The figure Mr Halfon uses is based on the numbers claiming Jobseeker's Allowance but large numbers of people don't claim – those who have been benefit sanctioned and anybody on the so-called Universal Credit can't claim JSA but are still out of work.

There has been a welcome rise in employment. Fortunately the last government left the economy with such underlying strength that even George Osborne couldn't completely wipe out the recovery. He merely slowed it down by two years, as every respectable economist now admits.

But there are two other reasons why there are more people in work: first, the age of retirement for women is increasing annually so there are more women in work and, second, there are more people as the last birth bulge works its way through.

Another large contingent are those people thrown out of safe, well-paid, public sector jobs and rehired in insecure, low-paid jobs. We are now paying for these jobs through increased in-work benefits and housing benefits. The costs have been transferred from the taxpayer to, er, the taxpayer.

As for Mr Halfon's much-vaunted apprenticeships, even more people are kept off the job statistics because they are being paid £3.60 an hour.

Nick Gunning
Halling Hill, Harlow

Showing support for NHS services

SIR I would like to thank all those people who helped collect 280 names for the Save the NHS campaign in Harlow on Saturday. Not bad for one-and-a-half hours and it just shows how important the NHS is to the people in this town.

Gary Roberts

Safety concerns at road junction

SIR I am writing to the Star once again to ask how many more serious accidents are to occur at the same road junction before something is done?

Another accident took place at the junction of Momples Road and First Avenue at about 5pm on April 20, resulting in traffic chaos in parts of Harlow.

Before the junction was upgraded some years ago as part of the widening of First Avenue it had been very difficult to negotiate. After the widening of First Avenue I was surprised that it had not been improved by the installation of a roundabout but made somewhat worse by the inclusion of the bus lane.

I am sure I speak for many who need to use the junction – including drivers of the No.8 bus – who find it very dangerous to attempt to turn right onto First Avenue even when there isn't a constant flow of traffic in both directions.

There are many junctions in Harlow that have traffic measures to reduce the risk of accidents. Before another serious accident occurs it is time it is now time this junction is modified again with the provision of a small roundabout or traffic lights.

I hope this letter will encourage other users of the junction to write in support of my ideas and that the work of improving the junction will start as soon as possible.

Thanks to car park samaritan

SIR Recently my three-year-old grandson Max had a seizure in a car park in Old Harlow.

I would like to thank everyone who offered their help, especially the gentleman called Rick who gave Max his coat and waited until the ambulance arrived.

It was a scary time for Max's mum and dad. Although Rick didn't think it did much, we were so grateful for his help at that difficult time. Thank you.

We can't wait to move away

SIR I have to agree 100 per cent with the correspondent who complained that for residents living in Milwards summer is a nightmare (Letters, April 16).

We have lived here for four years and it has been terrible. We are moving in a month's time and we cannot wait to go.

It's not only the noise, there is also a drugs problem. It is like living in downtown New York. No-one cares about anyone else but themselves.

Our car has been vandalised twice by groups of youths but if you say anything you can get a mouthful of abuse.

Putting fitness to the test with marathon run

Residents take on 26.2-mile challenge

Gemma Gardner

gemma.gardner@hertssexnews.co.uk

HARLOW residents joined more than 38,000 runners and fundraisers to take on the Virgin Money London Marathon on Sunday.

PE teacher Kristina O'Hara completed the 26.2 mile course in a time of 3:55:45.

The head of Physical Education at Harlow's Burnt Mill Academy has been keen to run the race for a few years, but injury and being selected to play netball for England have so far stood in her way.

Miss O'Hara hopes to raise £1,500 for deafblind charity Sense.

She said: "Running for such a worthy charity gave me the drive, motivation and focus to train and be successful in the marathon. It was a great experience. I started out steady and maintained my pace throughout the race, with the fastest part of the course being my last two miles. The crowd were amazing and really pushed you through the tough miles."

Inspiring slimmer Ritchie Parrott took part in the marathon after losing 11st in just two years.

The 45-year-old from Moorfield, Harlow, crossed the line in just under seven hours to help raise more than £12,000 for Cancer Research with a group of friends.

His achievement seems even more remarkable considering in 2012 he weighed in at 27.8 stone.

However, he still did not find the 26.2 mile marathon a walk in the park.

"It was going well up until around 15 miles," he said.

"I felt like I'd had the stuffing knocked out of me at that point and I just found I didn't have any energy left, I was drained. I don't think I'm cut out for a marathon it is a very long way, but I am proud to have completed it as it is something I have always wanted to do."

Mr Parrott weight loss journey began in November 2012 when he began attending slimming world sessions.

Steve Jack crossed the line at 3:57:38. He wanted to raise £500 for Harlow homeless charity The Chocolate Run, but ended up raising more than £800.

He said: "I loved every minute of the run. I saw Paula Radcliffe at around mile 13 for me and mile 22 for her. It was a privilege and an inspiration to be following in her footsteps."

"The spectators were great and really lifted me, especially over the last few miles when I was very tired. My time was 3:57:38, which I'm very pleased with. It was my first marathon, but probably not my last. I'll definitely be in the ballot for London next year."

Former The Bishop's Stortford High School student Ryan Lanham, 23, who finished in 4:19:40, was hoping to raise £1,800 for CRY (Cardiac Risk in the Young) in memory of two young women who died as a result of undiagnosed heart conditions.

Four years ago, Ryan was the last person to see his Warwick University housemate, Hannah Pickering, before she went to sleep and tragically never woke up. And when he was at TBHS, he was in the year below Caroline Johnstone, whose memory inspires music festival Cazfest.

Debbie Bodhanya, a trustee of St Clare Hospice, finished in 5:56:23. The former nurse was one of a team of 13 running in aid of the Hastingwood-based charity. She was inspired to sign up for her first marathon in memory of her father Gerry, who died in 2003.

Driver's five-year lie that ended in jail

A MOTORIST who spent more than five years lying to police after he was caught speeding on the M11 north of Harlow has been jailed after admitting perjury and perverting the course of justice.

Ashley X – who changed his name by deed poll in 2006 – was filmed driving his Honda sports car at 67mph in a 50mph section of roadwork in December 2009.

He ignored requests from Essex Police to confirm who was driving and then claimed it was his cousin who was at the wheel of the car.

He spent the next five years fighting the case at six different courts before he finally he changed his plea when he appeared at Ipswich Crown Court on Thursday.

The court was told he was initially summonsed for speeding and for failing to produce driver details. After three magistrates court hearings – two at Harlow and one at Witham – he was found guilty of failing to provide driver details.

He then faked a letter claiming it was from the cousin who wanted to confirm it was him who had been driving.

Two appeal hearings were held in 2011 but these were dismissed, after which X attempted to apply to the Appeal Court but this was also rejected.

Undeterred, he then made an application at Ealing Magistrates Court in which he claimed he knew nothing about the Witham court hearing and in a declaration denied owning the sports car.

This was investigated by police, who discovered that X's cousin was a friend who never owned the car and denied writing the letter admitting he had been the driver. As a result X was charged with perjury.

On Thursday judge Martyn Levett jailed X, from Ealing, for nine months for intending to pervert the course of justice and five months for perjury, the sentences to be served concurrently. He was also ordered to pay costs of £1,200.

Speaking after the case, PC Roy Keyes of the Essex Police Casualty Reduction Team said: "Ashley X was determined to avoid paying the £60 fine and having three penalty points on his licence."

"For five years he tried to deny the offence and committed two serious offences which ultimately led to him being sent to prison."

Parish seeking legal advice on neighbourhood exclusion zone

PARISH councillors in North Weald are seeking specialist legal advice after being told to exclude two parcels of land at Hastingwood from its neighbourhood plan.

The parish council is challenging Epping Forest Council's over its view that the two sites – Latton Priory near the M11 roundabout and the Harlow Gateway site off the A414 London Road – should not be included in the plan as they remain strategic sites for possible development.

Members attended a parish council meeting on Monday were shown a letter from planning consultants acting for developer which revealed the Latton Priory site could be developed with more than 2,000 homes along with a business park, community facilities, open spaces and recreational areas.

But parish councillor Dick Spearman told the meeting: "Unless something is signed, sealed and virtually delivered it's not a strategic site."

It was agreed that specialist advice should be sought to establish whether the district council has the right planning policies in place to say the areas can be excluded.

The council is also responding to a letter from the district council and is giving planning officers until May 15 to reply.

The issue is due to be discussed by the district council's cabinet on June 11.

Theatre's £30k bid to replace old seats

Fundraising campaign launched to raise the money

William Mata

william.mata@hertsexnews.co.uk

A CROWDFUNDING campaign has been launched to raise £30,000 to replace the 20-year-old seats in the Victoria Hall Theatre at Old Harlow.

The campaign has been launched on website Indiegogo, where those who donate are given exclusive rewards for their support. To access the money, the theatre needs to raise the full amount within 60 days.

Theatre chairman Martin Colton said: "The 120 seats have been there for 20 years and they are falling apart, they are nowhere near the standard of comfort that any patron would expect."

"Over the years we have re-upholstered and repaired the chairs as best we can, but sadly they have now surpassed any state of repair."

"We close every year in August to get lots of people throughout the theatre together to give it a summer clean. This campaign is lasting for 60 days and we hope to install the seats over the summer break."

The campaign was launched on Thursday and has already raised

£1,140. Anybody who pledges £20 will receive the "heartfelt thanks" of the theatre and the purchase of one individual seat for £250 would be rewarded with a personalised name plaque.

Victoria Hall is hoping the new seats will be a fitting way to mark their 20th anniversary after the hall was converted from a church in 1995 following the temporary closure of Harlow Playhouse.

It is run completely by volunteers, who help stage performances most weeks of the year.

Mr Colton added: "The theatre has given so much over the years and it's time to put in some effort to giving something back to the community. It's a place that I love and it's all self-funded.

"We are also trying to develop wheelchair access into the building to make the theatre more accessible, as the current system is just not fair."

Former PAH nurse died of head injuries

FORMER Harlow hospital nurse Karen Buckley died from head and neck injuries, according to her death certificate.

The body of the 24-year-old, who worked at Princess Alexandra Hospital before moving to Glasgow in February to study occupational therapy, was found earlier this month after a four-day police search.

Miss Buckley vanished after a night out. Her flatmates raised the alarm when she failed to return home and her remains were uncovered on farmland.

Alexander Pachteu, 21, has been charged with murdering Miss Buckley and attempting to defeat the ends of justice.

Miss Buckley's death certificate, which was signed by her parents, John and Marian, was officially issued by a registrar in Glasgow last week.

Her father, John, said:

"Marian and I, with our sons Brendan, Kieran and Damian, are absolutely heartbroken."

"Karen was our only daughter, cherished by our family and loved by her friends. We will miss her terribly."

Many people in Harlow have complained they are struggling to get a GP appointment. How would you improve the current situation?

■ ROBERT HALFON

Due to being born with spastic diplegia I spent much of my childhood going to Great Ormond Street hospital seeing doctor after doctor. The NHS had a huge impact on my life and it is why I work hard to protect it and ensure residents get the best possible service.

There are three ways to ensure better GP services:

1. Increased investment. Whilst there are 9,000 more doctors and 7,000 extra nurses, David Cameron has stated that he will ensure the NHS gets an extra £8bn a year in investment by 2020.

2. Increased GP hours. We need seven-day-a-week GP services. This is a Conservative commitment. Harlow GPs have already been guaranteed an extra £24m to allow for evening and weekend opening.

3. Increased support for Princess Alexandra Hospital. Our local NHS had an extra £4m boost in 2014 and £5m in 2013 to help with our A&E.

■ SUZY STRIDE

I surveyed hundreds of residents in Harlow last year and I was shocked to discover that half of the respondents couldn't see their GP within 48 hours the last time they tried.

That's in line with national figures that show only 40 per cent of patients get an appointment within 48 hours. Under the last Labour government it was 80 per cent.

Labour would guarantee a GP appointment within 48 hours for everyone that needs one. We'd also hire 8,000 more GPs to help with the problems of capacity and invest an additional £100m in to family doctors practices which could pay for an additional three million GP appointment a year.

Unlike the Tories who haven't said how they will pay for their plans meaning tax rises are likely to pay for them, all of our plans are fully costed and would not mean a single penny of extra borrowing.

■ GEOFF SEEFF

Something is very wrong when people requiring urgent medical attention cannot see their GP for days and are forced to turn to A&E, exacerbating its workload.

Despite 8,000 additional doctors recruited since 2010, Harlow has one of the lowest GP/resident ratios in the country.

The over-generous contract agreed by an inept Labour government increases GPs' paperwork but offers no incentive to extend surgery hours. Liberal Democrats will introduce a Patient Premium, making available additional funding to attract GPs to areas most in need and encourage practices to collaborate to provide full evening and weekend services and enable consultation via email, video and protected websites.

Equally important, Liberal Democrats want a healthy Harlow, minimising calls on GPs and hospitals. A substantial element of our extra annual £8bn to the NHS will be focused on improved preventative care, specifically, advice on dietary and exercise regimes, digital monitoring and screening.

■ SAM STOPPLECAMP

Ukip is set on protecting the National Health Service and investing an extra £3bn to safeguard it.

The GP services are the frontline for health care and if we cannot support the them then the entire service will fail.

Labour and the Conservatives will promise appointments 24 hours a day, seven days a week – another promise they will fail on.

Ukip wants to change how medical staff are trained to give Britain a stronger basis for skilled staff. It will take time as there is no quick fix, but over time it is the only true solution.

■ MURRAY SACKWILD

Clearly the training and recruitment of more doctors is necessary, as well as a change in the current model of GP practices.

GP surgeries are predominantly run as small businesses and therefore are insufficiently accountable to local people and government. We will introduce a new model of General Practice which will be based on practices being co-owned by patients and medical professionals in a

WITH just one week to go until the General Election, the Star has once again invited all seven of Harlow's parliamentary candidates to address our readers on two more issues which have regularly featured in our letters pages since the last election. Last week we asked about the future of the town centre and local train services. This week we turn our attention to GP services and the pressures facing the town's charities.

multi-stakeholder co-operative model. This will enable professionals, patients and communities to be partners in provision of care.

Sufficient safeguards and training of members would be put in place to ensure high quality decisions being made. Patients and staff will have a strong voice in the primary care provision in the practices and they will be directly accountable to each other. Primary care co-ops will be open to all potential patients to join and we will ensure that there are appropriate safeguards around membership, governance and provision.

■ EDDY BUTLER

The NHS has failed to train enough new doctors to keep pace with an expanding population which, due to uncontrolled migration, has expanded by more than six million people.

The overwhelming majority of these migrants are on very low wages and do not contribute to the Government's tax income. Hence we have more people and less money to spend on vital services.

Money can be saved from existing budgets to assist England's NHS.

Health tourism, where foreign nationals come here for treatment, costs the NHS £2bn a year and we throw away £13bn to overseas dictators in our ridiculous aid budget.

Under Labour the number of non-medical bureaucrats employed by the NHS soared to 51 per cent. There are more bureaucrats than medical staff. What's more, the sickness and absentee rates of NHS bureaucrats is twice the national average.

Get the sickness rates down, cut the bureaucracy and the money saved can be used to employ more GPs.

■ DAVE BROWN

The 2012 Health and Social Care Act meant an end to universal, state-provided NHS provision and an end to services that matter most.

GPs now decide local patients' priorities by making clinical commissioning groups responsible for selecting what services will or won't be provided for their area. In fact 40 per cent of GPs who sit on commissioning groups have been identified as having a conflict of interest.

In reality, most GPs still have little or no involvement in the process – they simply don't have the time. Far from being in control, GPs are demoralised, overworked and powerless, and are retiring early or emigrating.

The Royal College of General Practitioners estimates over 500 practices are threatened with closure.

TUSC says axe the Health and Social Care Act.

Many of Harlow's charities are facing pressures and the threat of closure which is having an impact on people in the town. How would you safeguard the town's charities?

■ ROBERT HALFON

One reason why Harlow is such a special place to live is the commitment residents have for our charities. From the Alzheimer's Society to Streets2Homes to Harlow Talking Newspaper, there is something for everyone. I wear the Heart4Harlow badge with pride.

For many years I've worked hard to support our charities and helped raise thousands of pounds. I was hugely honoured to be asked to be a patron of St Clare Hospice and receive a Pact for Autism award for my work and commitment.

To safeguard our charities, I would do the following:

1. Continue to pro-actively support funding from outside bodies like Essex County Council, such as the £76k given to local charities reported by the Star last week.

2. Work hard and regularly visit our charities to help their own fund-raising initiatives.

3. Carry on ensuring that Harlow charities have a voice in Parliament and their needs are represented to government.

■ SUZY STRIDE

I speak a lot to local charities and I'm acutely aware of the pressure on them. I think there's three areas we need to look at to try and help.

Firstly, regulation has increased on small charities and it needs to be streamlined. We'd make the reporting requirements clearer and less onerous and commission a study to look at the effect of auto-enrolment on the sector (I know many are worried about this).

Secondly, the relationship with government and local authorities needs to be enhanced. Labour will allow government departments to reserve specific contracts for social enterprises and not for profits so that charities and social enterprises are not in a bidding war with private companies with bigger reserves.

We also need to improve the relationship with Local Enterprise Partnerships and we will revive the voluntary agreement that outlines the relationship between public and voluntary sectors.

Thirdly, on funding, we'll look to work with funders to strengthen grant funding and many of the measures outlined above have positive implications for charities' finances.

■ GEOFF SEEFF

I stand in awe of the work and generosity of spirit of Harlow charities' staff, volunteers and donors. Many needy people are reliant on them and they deserve our support.

As a former charity chairman, I am aware of the difficulties in attracting funds. Securing grants for a particular project is one thing; it is another to ensure funds are available for long-term sustainability.

Compact agreements with the local authority and donors must be honoured on both sides. It is also incumbent on trustees to curtail excessive remuneration to senior executives.

Charities have been adversely affected by David Cameron's Lobbying Act which prevents them making representations on their cause to ministers. This is ridiculous and Liberal Democrats have pressed for this restriction to be waived.

Our policies on charities are set out fully in the Yellow Book On The Voluntary Sector, a publication endorsed by ACEVO and CAF.

■ SAM STOPPLECAMP

I run a charity and I know firsthand the impact of cuts. I also know the true value of those services.

We need to set our priorities and lobby every level of government to protect these services.

Ukip is the only party that wants to focus on red tape and reduce bureaucracy in government. Instead of spending more on management and red tape we can spend money on charities that can provide the local people the true local support they need.

For both questions we must use common sense to focus on the frontline of our community.

The others will continue to focus on their political doctrine of ages past, so do we look forward with Ukip or revert to tried and tested methods that have failed for years?

■ MURRAY SACKWILD

The Green Party values the incredible work done by charities, many with volunteer workforces. Unfortunately in a period of enforced austerity people are less likely to donate to charities.

With a boosted economy, as part of our anti-austerity policies, we would see people able to contribute more readily to our local charities again.

Our proposed introduction of Citizens Income will provide everyone with a level of economic security. This will put more people in a position to make choices between paid work and volunteering or a combination of both and should lead to an increase in voluntary work.

Additionally, charities that support individuals in the community – e.g. those that support mental health, the elderly or those with disabilities – should not be under constant threat re the financial viability of premises and provision. Legislation should be introduced to allow such charities reasonable and realistic rents, supported by local businesses where possible.

■ EDDY BUTLER

This country has an enviable reputation for charitable giving but I believe that the charity regime in this country needs a shake-up.

This is particularly important at a time of austerity when inevitably people have less money to give. There is a proliferation of similar charities; this duplication leads to considerable wastage in terms of their administration.

The Government gives significant relief to charities but could do more but only if they are rationalised and in many instances merged. Charitable status should not be available to non-British cultural or educational bodies or ones outside of our Judaeo-Christian religious traditions. Giving support to these diverse groups merely perpetuates division in our society. If people wish to engage in such expressions and activities then they should not be subsidised by the state.

Streamlining our charity regime would enable local and central government support to be targeted more effectively towards helping the deserving charities which could make all the difference in their valuable work.

■ DAVE BROWN

Poverty and suffering are both unacceptable and unnecessary. Many councils invest in charity-run food banks and crisis services as a result of devastating welfare cuts, rocketing food and energy prices, pay freezes, job losses and benefit cuts.

All the other parties are willing to direct more of our residents to these limited services rather than stand up and fight against savage attacks on ordinary people.

TUSC fully supports all charities in their fight for a better society and an end to poverty and suffering but urges Harlow voters to question the wider reasons for their need.

THE battle to win Harlow at the General Election intensified during the past week when the Conservative and Labour candidates brought in some of their big guns to support their campaigns.

Robert Halfon welcomed Conservative heavyweight Eric Pickles on Saturday and was joined by Economic Secretary to the Treasury Andrea Leadsom on Monday.

Meanwhile Suzy Stride teamed up with Labour MPs Stephen Timms and Gavin Shuker as she looks to win back the seat which her party lost at the last election in 2010.

Communities secretary Eric Pickles, who last visited the town in February to mark the start of building work at the former Nortel site in London Road as part of the Harlow Enterprise Zone project, chatted to shoppers in Broad Walk as he joined Mr Halfon and his supporters on the campaign trail.

Mrs Leadsom championed the Conservatives' plans for the economy after she was shown around Tiara's Toning Tables at The Stow where customers use exercise machines for therapy, weight loss and fitness.

"Tiara's is fantastic," she said. "It has been lovely to talk to people who were saying they have been helped by their service."

Big guns on the battleground to win over voters

Turning her attention back to the election, she said: "We have turned a corner with the economy. Inflation is at zero per cent and now we want to see businesses paying people more. Our minimum wage will be higher than Labour's by 2020.

"Robert has done such a great job in campaigning to keep the cost of living down. The Conservatives will hold a whole scale review of business rates to help high street shops."

Mr Halfon said: "I'm delighted the minister has come to see a great example of a small business in Harlow." The pair then visited the premises of defence systems manufacturer Raytheon Systems at Pinnacles.

Meanwhile, Ms Stride accompanied Mr Timms, the Shadow Minister of State for Employment, on a visit to Passmores Academy where they spoke to Year 10 students and celebrated a Labour victory in a mock election.

"I was very pleased to see the result and it could be that Passmores Academy have given the first sign of a victory for Labour," he said. "I very much hope Suzy is elected as she is passionate about Harlow and would make a great MP."

Labour is promising to lower university tuition fees, promote apprenticeships and introduce its flagship job guarantee programme.

Ms Stride said: "It was great to have Stephen Timms with us at Passmores' own General Election and it was good to see Labour get the victory.

"I was delighted to meet with students and see what they would want from a future government. Obviously none of them would want cuts to education and we gave a positive message about how Labour will protect school budgets."

During Mr Shuker's visit to the town last Wednesday, the Shadow Minister for International Development helped Miss Stride promote her campaign to improve Harlow's buses by meeting her at the Terminus Street bus station.

There are five other candidates standing in Harlow: Geoff Seeff (Liberal Democrat), Sam Stopplecamp (Ukip), Murray Sackwild (Green), Eddy Butler (English Democrats) and Dave Brown (Trade Unionist and Socialist Coalition).

Bug survey fuels fears over pest control services

Increasing insect infestation indicated

Ken Morley

ken.morley@harlowstar.co.uk

FEARS that spending cuts could spark an explosion in the UK pest population have been voiced by industry experts.

New figures reveal the number of local authorities who provide a free pest control service has declined by 26 per cent over the past four years.

A survey carried out by the British Pest Control Association using the Freedom of Information Act shows Harlow Council in 266th position in a league table of 409.

The figures for 2013-2014 show there were 3.72 call-outs per 1,000 head of population. The biggest problem reported to the council was wasps (128), followed by rats (81), mice (41), bedbugs (21) and cockroaches (2), with 32 under the heading "other insects".

According to its website, Harlow Council offers pest control treatments for residential properties for infestations of wasps, mice, rats, fleas, Pharaoh ants, bedbugs and cockroaches.

It charges £50 for treating wasps, mice, rats and fleas, with a concession charge of £11.50 for people on benefits. There is no charge for treating bedbugs, Pharaoh ants and cockroaches.

The BPCA, the industry's leading trade body, is warning that has the potential to prompt a significant increase in pests including rats and bedbugs.

Chief executive Simon Forrester said: "Four years of austerity measures have left local authorities under immense pressure to come up with savings and a number of public services have been cut as a result.

"A growing number of authorities who once provided pest control free of charge have either introduced charges or done away with their service altogether in a bid to balance the books.

"That has already had a significant impact on the pest population because numbers are higher than ever and, if cuts continue, the problem is likely to get much worse. It's posing a big risk to public health and we're worried that short-term budget cuts will result in higher overall costs down the line."

A total of 679,110 pest treatments were carried out by UK local authorities in 2010/11 but that figure dropped to 501,595 in 2013/14. The number of authorities offering a pest control service – either in-house or sub-contracted – declined by four per cent last year alone.

The BPCA says the policy has created big problems, particularly in low-income areas.

"The cost of professional treatments, either through the local authority or the private sector, can be prohibitive when people are struggling to make ends meet," said Mr Forrester. "But if residents try to deal with issues themselves or bring in unqualified controllers because they're cheap, infestations can quickly get out of hand."

The annual BPCA survey identified the areas of Britain most affected by pests in the last year. Newcastle-upon-Tyne City Council dealt with 6,246 issues at a rate of 50.42 per 1,000 residents – the highest in Britain.

CUTTING THE RIBBON: Christine Walkden opens the new garden at St Clare Hospice

Space programme pays off at hospice

TELEVISION gardening expert and St Clare Hospice patron Christine Walkden has officially opened the facility's new Space To Breathe family garden.

Invited guests joined staff, volunteers and patients at the ribbon-cutting ceremony which was held to coincide with National Gardening Week.

The garden has been created on a previously neglected space adjacent to the inpatient unit, providing a tranquil oasis for patients and visitors to the hospice at Hastingwood.

The project was started after St Clare won a £50,000 grant from the Big Lottery Fund as part of the People's Millions competition in conjunction with ITV.

The garden was designed by Stansted landscape architects Liz Lake Associates and developed by Harlow landscapers The Whitelaw Brothers. It features a water feature, raised beds and year-round planting that will enhance its natural beauty.

Fresh air

The area is also wheelchair-friendly and staff are able to take patients out into the fresh air in their beds.

Christine, who is best known as the resident gardening expert on the BBC's The One Show, said: "One of the things our patients and visitors tell us again and again when they come to St Clare is how much they appreciate having access to the hospice's beautifully maintained grounds. As a horticulturalist I know gardens have many therapeutic benefits as well as being physically and emotionally restorative so it was a great pleasure to be invited to officially unveil the new garden."

She added: "It has many lovely features that maximise the healing power of nature and provides a peaceful, calming and secluded haven for our patients and their families to spend quality time together and make memories they will always treasure."

New dining outlets are latest arrivals at airport

star@hertsexnews.co.uk

PASSENGERS passing through Stansted Airport can now tuck into celebrity chef James Martin's granny's carrot cake.

The family favourite is one of the treats on offer at the Saturday Kitchen host's first foray into airport catering.

James Martin Kitchen – a bakery offering fresh farm ingredients – was officially launched on Monday by the 42-year-old chef, along with 11 other outlets which are part of the second phase of an £80m project to revamp the terminal.

Mr Martin has spent the past two years developing the concept, including how to stop his granny's cake from crumbling. After 30 years in the restaurant business, the bakery was a new challenge and he was determined not to compromise quality for volume with a commitment to "great food, great service and a great customer experience".

"We wanted something with a wow factor and I believe we've got it," he said. "It's something very unique."

"You cannot fob people off any more with poor-quality food, you have to up your game. Give people something they're not expecting and exceed their expectations – and you do that by care and tons of research beforehand."

It is a philosophy embraced by each of his new rivals in the departures area. Competition was cut-throat, with 70 tenders for just a dozen restaurant, cafe and bar units.

Beth Brewster, Manchester Airports Group's retail director who has been driving the revamp, said: "When we set about announcing details of this major transformation to the retail industry we knew we were about to work on

HOME COOKING: James Martin has been training the chefs working in his outlet in his own kitchen

something of major significance, but not even I anticipated the buzz of excitement it would create amongst the industry.

"Narrowing down the strong competition to deliver a menu that provided a wide variety of choice based on taste, appetite and budget for our passengers is one of the best headaches I've ever dealt with."

"With many airport firsts, brand new concepts and the first celebrity chef appearance for Stansted, this really has been an exciting development. It's one I'm very proud to be part of and we look forward to announcing our partners for phase three of this development in the not-too-distant future."

Other new arrivals include the first Starbucks Evenings which serves a menu of hot dishes and sharing plates, the high-end Halo fizz bar offering English sparkling wines and finest champagnes, Coast to Coast which brings an all-American dining experience to a UK airport for the first time and the family-friendly eatery Giraffe with a Caribbean theme.

The centrepiece of the food hall is J D Wetherspoon's brand new Windmill pub, a £2.7m investment with a windmill centrepiece that rises through the bar to a new mezzanine level overlooking the airfield.

Stansted's managing director Andrew Harrison said: "Every single partner has gone out of their way to make their outlet the best it can be and that's great for the airport."

The work to increase the departure lounge in size by 60 per cent and add 70 per cent more seating has been carried out as Stansted experiences rapid growth, with almost 21m passengers now using the terminal each year.

MAG chief executive Charlie Cornish said: "When MAG acquired Stansted we set a clear vision to transform the terminal and improve its facilities."

"Having returned the airport to growth and once again made it the fastest-growing major airport in the UK, the timing for this £80m investment in the terminal building couldn't be better."

In brief

Return of pitch and putt?

PITCH and putt could be about to make a return to Harlow Town Park.

Harlow Council is inviting 'expressions of interest' from experienced companies to reinstate and manage the golfing attraction on an area of open parkland which was previously used for similar.

The council stopped operating the seasonal pitch and putt course in the park in the late 1990s and was taken over as a private operator for a further few years.

Work is currently under way to improve the park's facilities as part of a £2.8m regeneration project and promote health and wellbeing which has included the installation of an outdoor gym.

Staff trained to use defib

STAFF at the Harvey Centre have received training in the use of a heart defibrillator which has been installed at the Harvey Centre as part of an East of England Ambulance Service project to place 1,000 of the life-saving devices across the six counties it serves.

Thirteen staff at the Harlow shopping centre completed first aid and defibrillator training this month, under the guidance of emergency care assistant Jack Squires.

The trust has placed defibrillators in various locations including churches, leisure centres, schools and golf courses where they are easily accessible.

Burglars steal jewellery

JEWELLERY was stolen by burglars who broke into a house in Gibb Croft, Harlow. Three men wearing balaclavas were seen in the area at about 3.30pm on the afternoon of the break-in, which happened between 12.30pm and 5pm on Tuesday, March 10.

Disco night tribute to town's DJ legend

William Mata

THE life of popular Harlow nightclub DJ Pepe Herod, who has died at the age of 68, will be celebrated at a special tribute disco next month.

This week family and friends have been sharing their memories of the father-of-nine, who passed away after a short battle with cancer.

He leaves loving wife, Mary, and children Marie-Louise, 47, Marie-Ange, 46, Marie-Claude, 42, Adam, 40, Claire-Louise, 38, Jean-Pierre, 36, Aiden, 34 and Louis, 29, as well as 19 grandchildren and two great-grandchildren. His son Ange-Francois died in 2005 at the age of 34.

Born in St Lucia, Mr Herod moved to London in 1965 in search of a better life. He had a short career as a model and dancer, most notably featuring on the BBC show Ready Steady Go, before moving to Harlow in 1969, first to Fern Hill and then to Milwards.

Daughter Marie-Louise said this week: "[He was] a positive father in everything he dealt with. I always turned to him and nothing was ever a problem. He was taken too soon, we are devastated."

Mr Herod, who started as a DJ at a youth club in the late 1960s, was best known for his performances at the town's nightclubs, most notably the Bird Cage, which became Tiffanys, where he had a regular slot, in the 1980s and '90s. He continued DJ-ing until his retirement at the turn of the century but continued to play the occasional set at special occasions and was also an entertainer at Saturday morning pictures.

In later years he worked as a doorman and a driver and also helped with Harlow's Streets2Homes charity.

Son Aiden, who is also pursuing an interest in music, said his dad "played music before anybody else" and had a reputation as a "pioneering influence".

Daughter Claire-Louise added: "His taste was different to what was felt at the time. It was a wide variety of stuff that he played.

"Everyone knew who we were because of Dad. Even if we did something in London word would get back to him, that was the recognition he had. He had an influence over the whole Harlow scene."

Daughter Marie-Claude said: "He was a loving father, a real family man. He loved family gatherings but also to cook and spend time with us. He was always there for us and would never let us down."

Mr Herod, who was a karate black belt, had a comprehensive knowledge of music and was one of only a handful of DJs who played soul, funk and jazz music. Life-long friend Les Knott, 62, described him as a phenomenon.

"People used to queue all night for his music. Pepe was a really friendly guy who would always talk to you and he would do anything for you. He would always help you out."

"His funeral will be massive, so many people are going to be coming. We're hoping to get 300-400 along to the tribute event [at Paringdon Sports Club on May 30] and it will be a big, big night."

"Everybody is helping out for nothing and all the proceeds from the £5 entry fee will go towards the family and a plaque or road sign to commemorate him."

A funeral service will take place at Holy Cross Church at noon today (Thursday), followed by interment at Parndon Wood Cemetery.

Golf captain swings into action for charity

PUTT IT THERE: Golf club captain Alan Grant, left, presents the cheque to Macmillan Cancer Support volunteer Clive Harris

GOLF club captain Alan Grant was the driving force behind a year-long fundraising effort which resulted in more than £7,000 being presented to charity.

Mr Grant chose Macmillan Cancer Support as his charity for the year in memory of a friend who received support from the organisation before he passed away.

The presentation of the cheque for £7,250 – the most raised by a club captain – was the culmination of a 12 months of fundraising events which included raffles, parties and charity matches.

"It's outstanding," said Mr Grant. "I had to do a lot of work as captain but obviously there was a lot of help from people in the club."

"I am amazed at that amount and really pleased. I am a Harlow boy through and through, and have been a member of the golf club for 10 years."

'Rogue' officers given the boot by police chief

Pair sacked from Essex force for misconduct

A SENIOR police officer who once served in Harlow has been dismissed from the force following a fast track hearing after he admitted making indecent images of children.

Chief Inspector Ben Hodder, 34, was given a six-month jail term, suspended for two years, when he was sentenced earlier this month.

He was also made subject of a six-month electronic curfew as part of a 12-month supervision order, told to pay a £1,200 fine and sign on the sex offenders' register for seven years.

Hodder, 34, who was based at Thurrock, once served as district commander for Harlow. He has been suspended from duty since May last year.

A second officer – PC Stephen Tilley, 36, from Rayleigh – was also dismissed after being admitting misconduct in a public office. He was given a 22-month prison sentence, suspended for a year, and ordered to complete 240 hours of unpaid community work.

Essex Chief Constable Stephen Kavanagh, who presided over the back-to-back disciplinary meetings, announced on Friday that both officers had been dismissed with immediate effect.

They are the first fast track hearings to be carried out by Essex Police in more than four years.

Chief Constable Stephen Kavanagh said: "Every day I hear of Essex Police officers placing their lives on the line to save others, stop crime and bring offenders to justice."

"This force has a huge amount to be proud of which is why I find it hugely disappointing when rogue officers like these two let down their colleagues and the people of Essex so badly."

"There is no place in my force for people who commit offences like these and any officer of staff member convicted of similar crimes can expect to be dismissed."

He added: "I would like to pay tribute to the victims in these cases who had the courage to report these crimes and see them through to the court."

"I want to make sure that Essex Police employs only the bravest and the best and if anyone has concerns about the conduct or behaviour of any of my officers or staff I would urge them to report it to us on 101."

County police and crime commissioner Nick Alston added: "The vast majority of Essex Police officers behave with exceptional professionalism and a genuine spirit of public service keeping our communities safe, day in, day out. They deserve our respect and gratitude."

"However, when officers are found by our courts to have committed serious offences, it is right that a police disciplinary process takes place as quickly as possible. In the cases of Hodder and Tilley, the officers have been dismissed with immediate effect. They will be placed on the national College of Policing Disapproved Register, meaning they can no longer serve as police officers."

"Chief Constable Kavanagh continues to show strong leadership, and the public should be reassured that serious misconduct has no place in our police force and will not be tolerated."

DANCING dream

Talented Hayley opens academy

BURNS DANCE ACADEMY

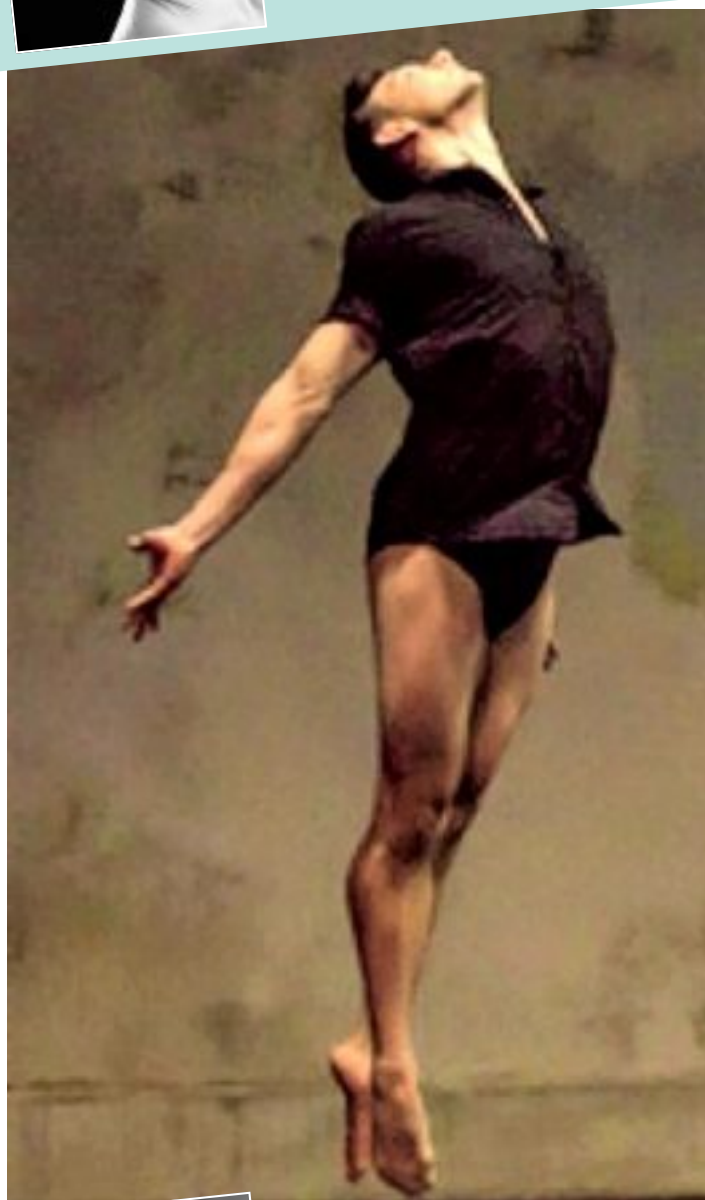

INSIDE: Your weekly guide to upcoming shows, films and concerts mixed with interviews with showbiz stars and local performers PLUS a page of puzzles

FOCUS ON: BURNS DANCE ACADEMY, Harlow

As a choreographer and teacher Hayley is very understanding, passionate and creates exceptional pieces.
I wouldn't have given London Studio Centre a second thought if it hadn't been for Hayley supporting me and training me over many years to be the dancer I have become today.
I would definitely recommend Hayley as a teacher for anyone wishing to dance.

Charley Mason
Second year, London Studio Centre

Hayley opened my eyes to the world of jazz and contemporary as well as ballet which contributed to my choice of career- I am currently in my final year at Millennium Performing Arts.

As a teacher, Hayley shared her knowledge from her own experiences as a performer and I loved presenting her individual style in choreography.

A NEW dance academy opens in Harlow this week, offering the highest standards of teaching for anyone with a passion for dance.

Professional choreographer Hayley Burns, who has been teaching for more than 12 years, has set up Burns Dance Academy.

"I felt the time was right to do it on my own" commented Hayley. "I had taught at other schools across the Herts and Essex area, but I wanted to start up myself and I will be offering something that isn't available elsewhere."

Burns Dance Academy's classes are held at Tye Green Community Centre in Harlow's Tilegate Road and also has classes in Barnet. There is an extensive timetable, covering a variety of styles for all ages and abilities.

Unlike other dance schools, Burns Dance Academy teaches choreography and also has classes for children from as young as two.

"A lot of people think that choreography is not something that can be taught, but I don't believe that," explains Hayley. "It's really important for anyone who wants to study dance to understand the ins and outs of choreography. We can get them to think about things in a different way and that can make their job so much easier."

"Getting a job in the industry these days requires so much more than simply being able to dance. We offer the chance to add another string to your bow, so that you have as much help as possible if you want to do it as a career. When it comes to getting employment within the entertainment industry, everything helps."

If anyone should know how competitive the industry is, it is Hayley. Born and raised in Harlow, she won a place at the prestigious Northern Ballet School when she was just 16 and left home to move to Manchester.

"I'd always danced as a young child. I had ballet lessons early on and my teacher, the well-known Leo Kersley, together with his wife Janet, really inspired me and drove me on. I spent two years at the Northern Ballet School and then I moved to the London Studio Centre because I wanted to learn lots of different styles. I had to work super hard there in my final year to pick up the different styles after doing just ballet"

While studying, Hayley gained her qualification as a dance teacher with the ISTD and is a registered member of Equity. She is also an Arts Award advisor.

After qualifying, her professional dance career took around the world and she worked in Portugal, Hong Kong, Norway and Denmark.

After working for five years, Hayley decided to return back to her roots in Harlow. She got married and had a daughter and then took up teaching a diverse range of classes for dance and stage schools.

Her choreographic skills are varied and well respected in the industry and she has won various competitions and choreographed many productions including classical ballets, contemporary dance works, many jazz pieces, and pantomimes.

Her most recent work was a full-length production of Snow White, with a large cast of dancers,

PASSION for DANCE

The strength and versatility that I gained from classes with Hayley has been extremely beneficial to my success as a dancer, and I will carry those skills with me throughout my career.

Especially through her innovative choreography (which I performed on many occasions), Hayley has aided me from a young age to develop a sense of individual dance style as well as being able to follow directions and learn intuitively.

It was a pleasure and an asset to be taught by someone with such a professional attitude and dedication to all her students.

Charlotte Wightwick
Graduate, Central School of Ballet embracing a mixture of ages and abilities.

Drawing on her knowledge and experience, Hayley believes the Burns Dance Academy will appeal to a wide variety of people. There are classes in ballet, jazz and contemporary, as well as choreography and stretch and tone.

Workshops that focus on a specific theme or skill, including stage combat, audition technique, and repertoire from a particular classical ballet, through to street/hip-hop master classes and West End show scenes will also be available. All workshop places need to be booked in advance.

Also available is Melody Movement®, which introduces children as young as two dance and movement using the natural actions of the body such as running, walking, jumping, hopping, skipping and galloping.

It is structured to aid children's physical development, coordination, spatial awareness, sensory development, creativity and self-expression.

Melody Movement® also introduces children to other fundamental curriculum learning skills such as counting, colour and shapes recognition, vocabulary and language skills.

The strength of the system is that learning is achieved through imaginative movement, which is enjoyable and fun. This unique dance curriculum is tailored to discovering and fulfilling the potential of each child, nurturing their creative development and giving every child the opportunity to discover and fulfil their own potential.

Loveable teddy, Melody Bear®, is the focal point of the early years curriculum and all her activities, stories, ideas and dreams can be told through dance and movement. Melody Bear's steadfast determination to overcome any difficulty is an inspiration to young and old.

The carefully planned learning experience of each child ensures a successful transition from one stage to the next. The Melody Bear® journey ends at Foundation Ballet level, as the children wave farewell to her at their graduation ceremony.

Those DIRTBAG boys are back and ready to play

If you listened to any commercial radio station in the year 2000, there's no doubt you would have heard the song Teenage Dirtbag by American rock band Wheatus blasting over the airwaves.

The track sold five million copies worldwide and was also featured in the film Loser.

Since then, the band have been tied up in lawsuits, gone through line-up changes and watched as the world's biggest boyband - One Direction - covered the famous hit.

Despite all the highs and lows, the band's founder Brendan B Brown is still enjoying every minute of being in the group and album number seven is on its way.

Fans will be able to hear some of their offerings when they come to the UK and journey to Harlow one last time to say farewell to the iconic venue The Square on Saturday, October 10.

Wheatus return to the venue as part of their 15th anniversary tour and will be playing their debut album in full.

"What if you really loved your part-time job but, what if it didn't pay enough? Well then you may be in Wheatus," said Brendan. "It's a special time for music. Not too much of it sticks and when it does well, it usually isn't everyone's cuppa. We really don't run into people who don't like Dirtbag, including us," he added.

Last year the band collaborated with Josh Devine and Sandy Beales - who are part of One Direction's band - on the single Only You and have had rave reviews about the fun Lego-inspired video that accompanies the song.

"We were fortunate enough to work with a young gentleman from Leeds called Oliver Broadbent on our video," said Brendan. "He reached out to me in 2010 and wanted to do a video for our song Lemonade."

At the time he was 19 years old and he finished a wonderful video for that song and you can watch it on YouTube.

"I knew I wouldn't be able to get in the same room as Josh and Sandy because of their touring schedule, so I reached out to Oliver and said can you make Lego figures of us all."

"He said yes and he totally pulled it off for Only You."

There's no getting away from One Direction for Wheatus, as the boy band have also covered their hit Teenage Dirtbag.

"I love it and am fine with them singing it," said Brendan.

"It's an honour our song is still going strong, as it's a song that Columbia Records gave up on in America in the fall of 2000 and now it just got played by One Direction in stadiums around the country."

"It's brilliant and a brilliant return for us. I'm happy to have it introduced to a new batch of kids."

Brendan says the song always goes down a treat and he never tires of performing it.

"The crowd take it over when we sing it and sing it louder than we can. There's no PA system that can be cranked up loud enough to hear us sing it," joked Brendan.

"I'm sure we'll raise the roof on the venue."

As well as touring the UK the band are working on their next album and are keeping busy.

"I don't see a reason for us to stop," said Brendan. "Maybe a vacation maybe nice sometime soon."

"Album seven is almost ready to be recorded and we'll be working on that over the winter and hope to have that done by 2016."

With a career spanning 20 years, the Brendan said he has enough rock and roll material to write a book.

"Do people still read books?" he asked.

"Perhaps one day I'll write one, as we have some pretty outrageous stories to tell."

FUNNY times at the Playhouse

ALI COOK

GET ready for an evening of classic comedy as Harlow Playhouse have lined up a stellar ensemble of funny men for a memorable show on Friday, May 15.

Comedians on the bill include veteran Aussie performer Benny Boot, comedy magician Ali Cook, BBC regular Noel James and dark humourist Michael Fabbri.

NOEL JAMES

The four will all be part of the venue's Live at the Playhouse series which provides something for all comedy tastes and senses of humour - making it the perfect night for those who like a laugh.

Trickster Ali Cook will be top of the bill, with the sleight of hand expert a much sought-after performer for comedy clubs nationwide.

Combining magic and comedy, Ali's performance will include escapology, illusion and thought control to both wow and crack up an audience.

While more traditional in his performances, Benny Boot is still a very much unique act and remains as fresh as ever after nine years performing in the UK.

The Australian is notorious for covering topics ranging on the diverse and strange, delivered in his unique style.

Noel James is a highly original performer who has graced the BBC's The Stand Up Show.

Audiences can expect the absurd and sublime from the Welshman, who was once described by the Independent as "standing out like a droll giant in a comedy land of trite dwarfs."

The dark and honest approach to some of life's more touchy subjects has won Michael Fabbri much acclaim.

Since being a finalist on Channel 4 competition So You Think You're Funny?, Michael's refreshingly frank and funny act has led him to become a writer for Stand Up For The Week.

■ The evening kicks off at 8pm and Tickets cost £16. More information can be found at www.playhouseharlow.com or by calling (01279) 431945.

LIFESTYLE BEAUTY

EXPERT ADVICE: Make-up artist Karleigh Marsh gives Phoebe Milham some top tips for the prom

Picture: Andy Palmer

MOLLY'S top tips for prom season

At this very moment I'm feeling annoyed with myself. I have lost something, which I wanted to share with you as evidence, (and I know I've mentioned this before), but what I was trying to find was a newspaper cutting, reporting on how 'Disco Mollie' was bringing American-style proms to Essex – 28 years ago.

I've searched high and low to find this picture, so I can get a pat on the back, recognition and all that, but in hindsight it's probably best I haven't found it, after all this makes me responsible for breaking lots of parents' bank account!

Many girls will be getting very excited around now as prom season beckons, and so they should do – when else do you get a chance to dress up as Cinderella apart from your wedding day?

Of course there is pressure of getting the hair and make-up right which is where once again your Fairy Godmother, aka Molly, has come up with ten tips to help you look fit for the ball.

1) This is not the time to try out a new trend. Stick to neutral colours, which enhance your natural beauty – over the top make-up TOWIE style is an absolute no!

2) Make sure your foundation matches your skin-tone exactly, go to a department store counter and test a few on your cheek, then look into the natural sunlight and see which one disappears into your skin-tone – this is the one for you. There quite frankly is nothing worse than seeing an orange line across your jawbone.

3) You're at the perfect age to wear glitter (although this Fairy Godmum still loves it) however, there is no need to scatter it all over the eyes and lips, just choose one focus i.e. a sprinkling on the eyelids or a dazzling lip shine and that's enough.

4) Whilst you can wear a tiny bit of glitter, keep most of your makeup matte in texture. Some shimmer on the eye is fine, but flash photography reflects the light and can make skin look greasy!

5) Got a spot – zap it with an ice-cube to take down any swelling or redness. Suffer from flushed cheeks or redness, then use a primer specifically for sensitive skin – this will also help your make-up stay put.

6) Celebrities are often 'papped' looking washed out and this is because they've used a translucent powder, which shows up on the camera as chalky. Make sure your powder has yellow undertones to avoid this!

7) You don't need to match your make-up to your dress – choose colours to compliment your eye colour and skin tone.

8) Wearing falsies – lashes and/or nails. Practice makes perfect – and with lashes always use black glue.

9) Fake tan must always be done about 2 days prior to the big event – this is to ensure there are no frightful orange surprises on the day.

10) Finally, and admittedly not everyone likes a fairytale dress, don't lose sense of your own style. Individuality and feeling comfortable is by far the most important thing to remember and, besides, who wants to follow the crowd? I say rock those Huaraches and dance the night away.

You don't have to spend a fortune on make-up, especially when having to fork out for the dress, shoes and bag etc. The following make-up brands are all reasonably priced and have a huge selection to choose from.

BD Trade Secrets, prices from £2.99, Tesco

This great selection includes various foundations for different skin types. The Vital Skin Long Wear Foundation £9.99 glides onto the skin and melts into fine lines, leaving just a very subtle glow. Just offer to do mums shopping and chuck a few items in the trolley – she'll never look at the receipt!

Essence Effect Lip-gloss, £2.49, Wilkinsons

These gorgeous, glitzy glosses come in a range of shimmer and pearlescent formulas in the prettiest of colours. Use alone to enhance your natural lip colour, with a hint of sparkle or wear on top of another colour – the price means you can spoil yourself with colours!

The Body Shop Shimmer Cube Palettes, £16

Whilst it's best to go matte for photographs, these iridescent colours are perfect for the eyes as the shimmer is subtle enough to avoid looking 'shiny'. The palettes have long been one of my favourites to use beating hands down some of the top end brands. Palette 20 is perfect for a smoky look on all eye colours.

MAC Zoom Lash, £14.50, Prep & Prime 24 Hour Extended Eye Base, £16, Cremesheen Matte Lipstick Fanfare, £15.50

www.maccosmetics.co.uk

I love MAC and their excellent reputation is not gained without reason. Whilst they have an excellent range of shades, it's the formulas, which really stand out making them nearly every make-up artists No 1 choice when choosing a brand.

The Zoom Lash gives ultra long lashes, whilst the Prep & Prime does exactly what it claims to do – keeps eye-shadow put for hours on end. Finally Fanfare Cremesheen Lipstick is the perfect rose shade, and whilst goes on creamy, leaves lips matte!

Finally if you want to get your make-up done professionally, then I personally recommend Karleigh Marsh, whom I've used for several shoots.

FILMGUIDE

ON THE SMALL SCREEN:

FRAUD SQUAD

DOCUMENTARY: ITVI, Thursday, 9pm
Return of the documentary following the work of detectives from City of London Police. The first of three programmes reveals how criminals make millions conning victims into buying worthless land they claim is ripe for property development. Footage seized from mobile phones shows how one gang ruthlessly targeted victims and squandered profits on lavish holidays and luxury homes.

W1A

COMEDY: BBC2, Thursday, 10pm.
Anna puts herself forward for the newly advertised role of Head of Better, while Matt continues to tinker unhelpfully with Lucy's as-yet-uncommissioned drama project Home Truth. Rumours that Newsnight anchor Evan Davis is to be a contestant in the forthcoming series of Strictly Come Dancing don't go down well in the current affairs department, and it falls to Ian to find an elegant solution.

ANZAC GIRLS

DRAMA: MORE4, Friday, 9pm.
Award-winning Australian drama set in 1915, inspired by the real-life experiences of five young women during the First World War. In the opening episode, a number of fledgling nurses arrive in Egypt and soon realise the war is not the adventure they thought it would be.

THE GAME

THRILLER: BBC TWO Thursday, 9pm
This gripping new spy drama from Toby Whithouse is set in the 1970s and stars Tom Hughes, Brian Cox, Paul Ritter and Victoria Hamilton. When a defecting KGB officer reveals the existence of a devastating plot by the name of Operation Glass, the head of M15 must bring together a top team to protect Britain.

As Soviet sleeper agents stir into action to carry out the secret plan, the M15 operatives will be stretched to the limits to their abilities and endurance.

Highly recommended.

AVENGERS meet

F THERE was any doubt about Marvel films being a big deal, it's dispelled at the European press conference for Avengers: Age Of Ultron.

Held in the swanky surrounds of the Corinthia Hotel ballroom just off Whitehall, it is the busiest press conference I've been to. They're putting in extra seats just before the film's stars arrive and there are journalists, who have flown in from around Europe, crammed along the sides and back of the room.

There's such a buzz because a new Marvel film, especially an Avengers film, is a serious proposition. Joss Whedon's first instalment in this particular franchise, released in 2012, took a tidy £1.5 billion at the global box office. Not only did it receive a big thumbs up from audiences, the critics loved it too, praising Whedon's winning blend of spectacular action, interesting characters, crackling dialogue and self-deprecating humour.

As a result, there are a lot of expectation heaped on Age Of Ultron. It's a darker, more complex film with a bigger cast of characters to bring together. A daunting prospect perhaps for Whedon who both wrote and directed the sequel, and he's admitted the process has been exhausting.

Still, he's in good spirits as he meets the media as are the stars, Robert Downey Jr, Chris Evans, Mark Ruffalo, Scarlett Johansson, Elizabeth Olsen, Aaron Taylor-Johnson and Paul Bettany, with plenty of jokes and banter flying around.

First of all, the actors told us what they were most excited about when it came to making the film and it was very clear that this is a bunch of people who really like working together. Or as Jeremy Renner, who plays Hawkeye, joked: "I get excited about hanging out with these degenerates."

Mark Ruffalo, who plays Bruce Banner and his alter-ego The Hulk, said: "Probably coming back to this world and seeing where these crazy people that we're playing are headed and knowing that Joss is going to take us there and into his own twisted psyche."

Never one to miss an opportunity to have a dig at the perception people have of him, Robert Downey Jr (Tony Stark/Iron Man) shared his most exciting moment while making the film: "Probably my first costume fitting, me surrounded by many full-length mirrors."

Chris Evans, aka Captain America, was a little more 'on message' and summed up the camaraderie that there is on set: "Marvel does a great job of bringing a lot of people together, not just in front of the camera but behind the camera so coming back together it's like a family, a lot of familiar faces, it's like a high school reunion."

For Scarlett Johansson, the Black Widow, it's all about finding out what the story is going to be

"I get most excited about reading Joss's script because it's the big pay-off after a long wait and also all of the [cover] letters with the script." She said. "They're so delightful and self-deprecating."

In Avengers: Age Of Ultron, as well as facing the menace of an artificially intelligent robot accidentally created by Stark and Banner that is out to kill them, the Avengers also get to explore their characters a bit more, particularly Johansson whose Black Widow is a spy amid a macho world of super-powered beings.

STAR LINE-UP: Robert Downey Jr, Chris Evans, Scarlett Johansson, Aaron Taylor-Johnson and Paul Bettany at the Avengers: Age Of Ultron press conference

"What's great about playing this character is she's based in something deep I could hold onto, she's grounded and very real," she explains. "She has experienced a lot of trauma and never really been able to make active choices but now she is and she's ready for it and unfortunately it's just kind of bad timing. These kind of things are something we can hold on to [as actors] when we're fighting and shooting a page for two weeks, it keeps us involved and keeps our heads straight."

"One of the qualities I love and am interested in [Black Widow] is that she has a chance to do something for herself, maybe even have a relationship, but there's a great calling for her and she very selflessly chooses that which is very heroic. She's a very slippery fish for her job, but when you get Natasha

WIN TICKETS TO SEE GYPSY IN LONDON'S WEST END

Don't miss Gypsy, one of the greatest ever Broadway musicals

Imelda Staunton delivers a "knock-out performance" (The Independent) as Momma Rose in Jonathan Kent's "dazzling revival" (Mail on Sunday), alongside Lara Pulver, who reprises her "stunning" (The Independent) role as Louise. They are joined by Peter Davison as Herb, in this gloriously entertaining musical fable that features "show stopping" (Mail on Sunday) choreography from Stephen Mear.

Based on the true life memoirs of legendary burlesque entertainer, Gypsy Rose Lee, it tells the tale of Momma Rose and her two daughters, trekking across America in their family vaudeville act. But times are changing, audiences are expecting more, and the two girls have their own ambitions in mind. The rise of burlesque is upon them, and nothing will ever be the same again for Momma Rose.

With lyrics by Stephen Sondheim, book by Arthur Laurents and music by Jule Styne, this moving and "scintillating" (The Times) production of Gypsy is the first to be seen in London for 40 years.

the British MEDIA

As Marvel's latest blockbuster hits the big screen, Darryl Webber has an audience with the actors playing 'Earth's mightiest heroes' as they talk about their latest adventure just for herself she's very cool."

One of the film's Marvel newcomers, Elizabeth Olsen who plays the Scarlet Witch, said she felt at home with everyone on the team straight away.

"I just feel thrilled to be part of this whole group and world. It's a franchise I've been watching since the first Iron Man and I think they make such great films have such a great balance and depth of humour and action, and they're all humans that have weaknesses."

For all their spectacular action, Marvel movies never lose sight of the characters that drive them and we get to see more of Hawkeye's personal life this time.

For Paul Bettany, who appears in the film as The Vision after providing the voice of Jarvis in previous Marvel movies, it's Renner's character who is central to things: "Hawkeye for me is really the heart of the movie, for me it was really moving and he's fantastic."

Predictably, Jeremy Renner wouldn't pick out a favourite character arc.

"I like them all, I'm not going to pick one out," said Renner. "I think it's a huge, huge testament to Joss to be able to write a movie that brings together all these characters that are all extremely interesting and flawed and fantastic. It's like a chessboard and I think you need all the pieces for any of it to make sense."

WORTH A WATCH

Mike's TV Film of the Week

THRILLER: FROM RUSSIA WITH LOVE ITV4, Saturday, May 2, 8pm
Everyone, as they say, has their favourite James Bond – typically the one you grew up with. All of them have their champions, and their merits (although Roger Moore's may be hard for some of us to put our finger on). But when it comes to the films themselves – which is the best – the case is far more clear-cut. There are only two candidates (OK, three if you include the impressive but oddly unBond-like Skyfall). Goldfinger, the third in the series, perfected the formula; it was what all subsequent Bond movies tried, and failed, to live up to. But From Russia With Love is an even better film.

It's hard to imagine, but in 1963 it was by no means clear that James Bond would become a world-conquering franchise. The excellent Dr No had been a hit, and there was plenty of source material available, but a dud follow-up could have finished things then and there. Instead the same team responsible for No – director Terence Young, scriptwriter Richard Maibaum, editor Peter Hunt and art director Syd Cain, plus overnight sensation Sean Connery – outdid themselves. FRWL is that rare beast, a sequel clearly superior to its predecessor

Mulligan shines through the grime

A RECENT re-release of John Schlesinger's 1967 version of Far From The Madding Crowd provided a timely reminder of the raw emotional power of Thomas Hardy's late 19th-century novel and Julie Christie's luminous portrayal of spirited heroine, Bathsheba Everdene.

Danish director Thomas Vinterberg brings a delicate touch to this handsome new incarnation, which runs 50 minutes shorter than its predecessor and is undernourished as a consequence.

One tragic supporting character, who should shatter our hearts to smithereens, is reduced to a simplistic two-dimensional plot device, and the heroine's vacillations between three potential suitors seem more haphazard than usual in a noticeably rushed final act.

Moreover, one of these paramours has significantly more screen time, so her choice is inevitable.

Feelings are tightly buttoned beneath Janet Patterson's splendid costumes and when one of the characters does eventually lose control and commits a fatal "crime of passion" at a Christmas party, we're just as surprised by the outburst as the film's clucky social set.

The film opens in 1870 with Bathsheba (Carey Mulligan) living with her aunt Mrs Hurst on the adjacent property to handsome sheep farmer, Gabriel Oak (Matthias Schoenaerts).

She rebuffs his heartfelt advances, telling a crestfallen Gabriel, "I don't want a husband. I don't want to be some man's property".

Soon after, Bathsheba inherits her uncle's vast estate and defies expectation to turn around the ailing farm, aided by her companion Liddy (Jessica Barden).

Gabriel, who has fallen on hard times, is hired by Bathsheba as the estate's shepherd and continues to pine for her from afar.

Meanwhile, emotionally repressed and wealthy farmer William Boldwood (Michael Sheen) makes his feelings for Bathsheba known, but her head is turned by dashing and reckless Sergeant Troy (Tom Sturridge), whose heart was broken at the altar by servant girl Fanny (Juno Temple).

These three suitors leave Bathsheba in an emotional whirl and when Boldwood offers her financial security as his bride, she turns to brooding Gabriel for advice.

"I need some who's objective, indifferent," Fanny tells the shepherd.

"Then I'm afraid you're asking the wrong man," pointedly responds Gabriel.

Anchored by Mulligan's nuanced performance, Far From The Madding Crowd is a visually arresting, but ultimately anaemic portrait of rural desires.

Schoenaerts wrestles in vain with a West Country accent, while Sheen and Sturridge have limited screen time to match fond memories of Peter Finch and Terence Stamp in respective roles in the 1967 film.

While Vinterberg's vision, filmed on location in pastoral Dorset, Oxfordshire and Buckinghamshire, lacks emotional heft, it packs a mighty visual punch thanks to cinematographer Charlotte Bruus Christensen.

Rolling landscapes look invitingly wild and untamed, bathed largely in natural light, and the nascent beauty of leading lady Mulligan shines through the artfully composed muck and grime.

By most accepted rules of vehicle marketing, this shouldn't happen. For a car with as divisive a look as the Nissan Juke to rack up such huge sales would suggest that those who love it really love it.

The usual template is for the big sellers in a range to be conservatively-styled while the niche models on the periphery are ones that car manufacturers can afford to take the odd risk with. Perhaps the Juke was originally destined to be an outlier but went mainstream. Whatever, it's here, it's hard to ignore and it's been updated to keep buyers interested.

What is most amazing about the Juke is that a company the size of Nissan could build it. The usual procedure is for a maverick designer to come up with just such a concept only for octogenarian company heads to shelve it, for customer clinics to reject it or for marketing pressure to water it down.

Somehow, the Juke survived all of these potential trapdoors and remains singularly the most distinctive family car on sale today.

Though the existing 110PS 1.5-litre dCi diesel continues unchanged, there's otherwise quite a bit of change to report beneath the Juke's stubby bonnet when it comes to the pair of petrol powerplants on offer: one is new to the Juke and the other extensively revised.

The 1.2-litre DIG-T petrol engine, developed in conjunction with partners Renault, replaces the original model's aging 1.6-litre unit and features turbocharging and direct injection to deliver 115ps and 190Nm of torque.

Despite its modest size, this 1197cc turbo four packs a real punch, offering sharper acceleration and greater torque than the old 1.6-litre naturally-aspirated motor.

The popular 1.6 DIG-T turbo petrol unit has been further improved to deliver lower end torque below 2,000rpm. Producing 190PS, this is available in both front and all-wheel drive versions. Go for an all-wheel drive variant and you have the option to specify the Xtronic transmission gearbox, which further improves fuel efficiency and acceleration.

The Juke's elevated stance but diminutive overall length doesn't promise a stellar driving experience, but as the last model proved, within a few yards you'll realise that this is a fun car to hustle about.

Nissan Dynamic Control helps here; an advanced driver control system giving the choice of three different driving modes, Normal, Sport or Eco, along with instant driving information and vehicle setting controls. The torque vectoring system on the latest all-wheel drive model incorporates technology that Nissan initially used to such devastating effect on their GT-R supercar-slayer.

Yes, the Juke does still look like either something dredged up from the abyssal depths of the ocean or a fun, friendly and futuristic little runabout, depending on your perspective.

Whichever camp you're in, you have to hand it to Nissan for not losing its resolve and watering this version down. At the front, the upper lamps have been redesigned and now incorporate bi-intensity LED daytime running lamps, while the headlamps now have Xenon bulbs for better visibility.

Door mirrors get LED indicators and, where fitted, cameras for the Around View Monitor. Bumpers, tail lights, alloy wheels and available colours have all been tweaked.

The Sunlight Yellow metallic is sure to be popular with those who resolutely refuse to blend in. Nissan also offers coloured inserts which can be applied to the mirror caps, side sills, roof spoiler and door handles in order to further personalise the exterior.

That motorbike-style central console continues inside and features such as the console, door trims and other elements can be individually coloured red, white, black or even bright yellow.

Changes have also been made to the shape of the luggage bay in two-wheel drive models to boost luggage space by an impressive 40 per cent, taking the overall capacity to a respectable 354 litres.

Versatility is further enhanced with flat folding rear seat, making it easier to load large objects, while the inclusion of a two-stage floor in the luggage area makes the space even more flexible.

Rival manufacturers were left scratching their heads when Nissan started selling Jukes from around £13,000. To put into perspective quite how good the value proposition is here, consider the fact that you can now buy a 1.2-litre turbocharged Juke for less than the price of a 1.0-litre Ford Fiesta.

It's not as if the Juke is lacking in equipment either. Standard on all models are LED daytime running lamps, a CD radio with an AUX-in socket, a gear-shift indicator and a tyre pressure monitor. The Visia 1.5 dCi and 1.6-litre DIG-T versions add alloy wheels, manual air conditioning, a drive computer and driver seat height adjustment.

Go for the Acenta trim and you receive front fog lights, 17-inch alloy wheels, automatic air conditioning, remote audio controls, Bluetooth connectivity for phone and audio streaming, cruise control and a speed limiter, along with the Nissan Dynamic Control System and chrome interior touches. It's no wonder this model is so popular.

Tekna models add power folding door mirrors, light and rain sensors, the 'i-Key' with start/stop package and the latest NissanConnect with rear-view parking/reversing camera, around view monitor and safety shield.

NissanConnect now offers smartphone connectivity through a 5.8in colour touch screen. The sat nav system integrates with Google to give information that ranges from weather forecasts to the location of fuel stations, hotels and restaurants.

Scrap Cars

End of the road for your vehicle?

Responsible drivers scrap their vehicles at an Authorised Treatment Facility (ATF).

Because only an ATF can legally scrap a vehicle.
That means any pollutants will be made safe before it's recycled in an environmentally friendly way.

What's more, for certain types of vehicle you'll get

Batsman is in top Nick this season

MY INJURY is recovering brilliantly at the moment, to be honest I wouldn't even call it any injury anymore.

I am bowling at full pace for about eight overs at a time and training hard at Billericay.

I was at the Oval on Sunday before the game and trained with the boys ahead of the match.

To be honest, there was green tinge to the pitch, which we thought would probably do more with the ball than it did on the first day.

The toss was important, which Fozzie [James Foster] won and bowled.

Then Brownie [Nick Browne], Dan Lawrence and Jaik [Mickleburgh] showed just how good the pitch was, they batted superbly on it.

Nick has a great temperament for a batsman and has a real patience, the perfect mind-set.

He has worked very hard and I have noticed that over time he has become tougher to bowl at.

In training before you used to feel like you always had a chance with him, but now it is like bowling at a brick wall, you're not going to get past him.

I can't see any reason why he can't score thousands of runs for Essex in the future.

Hopefully these runs for Dan [Lawrence] would have given him some confidence now, to show that he can score runs in Championship cricket.

It would be great to see him go on and score many more this season, so when the IPL lads get back from India he will give the coaches a selection headache on who they are going to leave out.

On Saturday we had a 'Meet the Team' session on Chelmsford High Street, which was a great experience.

There was a great reception in the town for us, which was really good.

A lot of fans came down and I was also doing the Essex Cricket 'Periscope' account.

It is a bit like Twitter, but a video version of it.

People were sending in questions for myself and Jesse Ryder, so it was a great way to get in touch with even more fans.

Hopefully we were able to sell some more tickets to get people down to the T20 Blast to add to an already brilliant atmosphere.

The more people that can come down the better.

Browne makes big opening statement

Opener wants to follow path of Gooch and Cook

by Robert Warlow

star-sport@hertsessexnews.co.uk

NICK BROWNE says he would love to follow in the footsteps of some of the great Essex openers from the past.

The 24-year-old has made an impressive start to the new domestic season, scoring hundreds in both innings of the warm-up match with Cardiff University before going on to score 11 and 25 against Kent and setting a new career best with his fourth first-class ton against Surrey.

And after scoring 143 in Essex's first innings in this week's drawn match at the Oval, Browne says he is using the glorious careers of former Essex opener Graham Gooch and England captain Alastair Cook as something to spur him on.

"It gives you so much inspiration when you think of players like Graham Gooch and Alastair Cook, who are both legends in the game and for Essex," he said.

Footsteps

"I have no doubts that Alastair will finish as England's highest-ever run-scorer and hopefully I can follow in their footsteps.

"I have spoken to Alastair in pre-season about batting for a long time and he said about being calm and patient, and I am trying to take on that as much as I can."

Browne, who counts Cook and current England star Gary Ballance among his favourite players to watch, says he is feeling confident after his start to the new campaign, but says he has to stay focused to continue his rich vein of form.

"It is a cliché, but you do just have to take it one ball at a time," he said.

"For me, it is about batting minutes and balls and going from there.

"It is human nature when you know that you are close to a 50 or a 100 that you start thinking about it, but I am just going out there and trying to bat for as long as I can.

"I am feeling confident. I had a good pre-season and my game plan is very well suited to first-class cricket.

"And I feel that I am scoring runs on different wickets too, whether they be green wickets or good wickets and, for me, it is about cashing in on the good wickets and scoring big."

Meanwhile, Browne also paid tribute to his batting partners at the Oval, with Jaik Mickleburgh backing up his display against Kent with a solid 61 and talented teen Daniel Lawrence playing some nice strokes on his way to a maiden century (161).

"Jaik has had a brilliant pre-season," said Browne. "He is hitting the ball nicely and [Kent skipper] Rob Key said the same last week, and it is hard to get praise from him.

"But Jaik did play well on a tough wicket and he got his reward here with a solid 60, although he might feel he could have gone on and got more.

"And Daniel is a very talented player. He is still learning, but if he carries on like he is, he will score a lot of first-class runs.

"For me, it is good to be playing that left-handed/right-handed combination up top. It can knock the bowlers off their lines a bit and we try to rotate the strike as often as we can."

Naomi takes heart from England eyes despite World woe

SIXTEEN-year-old Great Britain hopeful Naomi Harryman found every cloud has a silver lining as she missed out on qualifying for the World Youth Championships in Somerset at the weekend.

England selectors approached the Harlow Athletic Club member after her heptathlon was completed to tell the youngster that she was very much in their thoughts.

She also gets another crack at qualifying for the Great Britain team at the IAAF Youth World Championships, which take place in Cali, Colombia in July, when she competes in the English U20 Championships at Bedford next month.

But Harryman was dejected after her efforts at Street, although the rainy conditions certainly didn't help.

"It was not my best competition. I had a really good hurdles, a good shot but my high jump and the 200 did not go as I would have hoped," she said.

The first day of the heptathlon went well and she was on target for the Worlds qualification.

She produced a personal best (PB) in the 100m hurdles – her time of 14.65sec was only 0.25 away from the hurdles' Worlds qualifying time.

Considering hurdles is her third best event, this was some achievement.

She then produced another big PB in the shot put (11.35m).

After three no throws in wet conditions in the javelin she pulled out of the 800m but still finished third overall.

"It was just one of those days. This is my first full season [competing in the heptathlon]," she added.

Track & Field

Will's just short for Colombia

HARLOW Athletic Club member Will Marklew secured a brilliant victory in the decathlon at the invitation-only World Youth Championships qualifier in Somerset.

Will, 16, was competing in only his second season in combined events. He missed out on the qualifying amount needed to represent Great Britain at the IAAF World Youth Champs in Cali, Colombia in July.

The qualifying standard is 6800 points, but Will finished with 6531 in the U18 competition at the Somerset Schools Combined Events Championships at Street.

He still has another chance to reach this amount at the end of May at the England U20 Championships at Bedford.

Will ran a personal best (PB) time of 11.77s in his first competitive 100m.

He quickly followed this with a respectable 6.13m in the long jump and 13.18m in the shot put.

Heavy rain did not deter him in the high jump as he leapt 1.81m, 4cm short of his PB in difficult and wet conditions.

The final event of the day came at 6.30pm after a very long and extremely wet afternoon. Will stormed home in his heat of the 400m in a PB of 53.75s, a good 10m ahead of his nearest rival.

Day two started with a 16.5s run in the 110m hurdles.

Again, this was Will's first time over this distance and one of his weaker disciplines.

Discus followed and a PB throw of 40.96m saw Will move into fourth position in the overall standings.

Handful of lessons

After just a handful of lessons, Will had to tackle the pole vault. He managed a PB of 3.10m, surpassing his expectations.

Will's strongest event and one that he could also qualify as an individual competitor at the World Champs, the javelin, followed.

Will delivered a massive throw of 64.89m, just over 5m short of the qualifying standard for GB and another PB for the athlete.

He threw more than 12m further than anyone else in the competition.

The final event of the day and often the one most dreaded by the now very weary competitors, the 1500m, saw the teenager needing a time of sub 4.40 to achieve 6500 points and first place in the competition overall.

Once again, Will stormed home, smashing his previous PB of 4.44 by more than nine seconds in an amazing time of 4.35, to win the race and the competition, ahead of some very talented decathletes.

Will said: "I always set the bar very high for myself and hope to improve on my previous performances in every single event every time I compete, so I was a bit disappointed with some of my performances this weekend as I know I can do better."

"I know what I need to work on for the next competition and will just train even harder to get the 6800 points that I need for selection, but it was wonderful to break 6500 points and to win my first ever decathlon against some really talented athletes."

Harriers are halted as year gets off to a flyer

Wonderful start for club in Southern Women's League

A STUNNING victory enabled Harlow Athletics Club to begin their 2015 Southern Women's League Division One campaign with a flying start.

A feather in the cap saw Harlow beat a South London Harriers team aiming to make an immediate return to the Premier Division.

The meeting, held at the Lee Valley Athletic Centre, began with Eryn Madsen winning the 400m hurdles.

She later won the B-string 100m hurdles, while Harlow's Mel Allam won the A event.

Allam claimed second spot in the A 100m.

Maddy Sherratt, making her first competitive start for a year following a serious hip injury, was third in the B race.

She followed this up with fourth in the 200m A race.

"I just needed to get back on the track to prove I could still do it," she said.

Annabel Owen was first in the 200m B race.

Polly Woods made a welcome return to Harlow colours and enjoyed a very good day on both the track and in the field.

She was second in the 400m A race and was ably supported by Katie Champion, making her first senior start in the B race, in which she also finished second.

Harlow lost points by not fielding athletes in the 800m events but clawed back ground with two good showings in the 1500m.

Rebecca Vears made her track debut. She picked up second in the A race and Katie Champion was again second in the B race.

The 3000m ended farcically with three athletes being given the bell a lap too soon, voiding the effort of Bridgett Owen who did complete the correct distance in the race. "It's infuriating as I felt that I had run a good time," Owen fumed.

The senior women fielded teams in both the 4x100m and 4x400m relays and were second and third respectively in the field.

The strong showing on the track was replicated in the field.

Polly Woods won the hammer with a fourth round throw of 32.05m. Bridgett Owen was fourth in the B competition.

IPC ranking

Allam and Woods were second in the two shot put competitions.

Eleanor Moss, Harlow's sole entrant in the discus, took third.

In her main event of javelin she was first.

Throwing into a strong wind she still managed 31.19m.

Allam claimed first in the B competition.

Rosa Huntington appeared as a 'guest' and threw a personal best (PB) of 10.26m as she aims to achieve an IPC ranking.

In the jumping events Woods won the A high jump and Madsen won the B event.

Woods ended her day with another victory in the triple jump and Hannah Owen was second in the B event.

The U15 girls took their lead from the example of the senior women and there were some notable performances.

Anna Clatworthy ran an impressive 80m hurdles in 14.4 seconds.

Charlotte Pratt won the 800m A race, particularly impressive as she is still young enough to be an U13 athlete.

Eilidh Malcolm won the A 1500m race, a distance Harlow have in recent times struggled to fill.

Louise Owen triumphed in the discus with a throw of 16.84m.

There were a string of debuts and Katie Brennan, Milly McSweeney, Casey Procter, Grace and Mairi Malcolm all performed well.

Izzy Brown, Nicole Chambers and Claudia Andrews all made solid starts to their seasons.

Harlow AC women's team manager, Steve Lott, said: "This was a fantastic result."

"I was expecting South London to be strong as I know they are really desperate to be back in the Premier Division."

"I was very proud of all the women and girls today. They enjoyed tremendous support from friends and family who generated a tremendous atmosphere."

Six teams competed in the meeting and Harlow finished on 240 points, nearly 30 points clear of their nearest rivals, South London Harriers.

Several runners ran for charity raising almost £8000 for various charities including St Clare Hospice, VICTA, Sense, Accuro and Age UK.

First Harlow runner to finish was Jared Bethell in 646th place in an excellent 2hrs 48min 16sec.

He was followed home by Jamie Jephcott, 2547th in a superb 3:06:35 (PB) and Andy Terrell, 5043rd in 3:24:19 (PB).

SIXTEEN-year-old Canaan Solomon moved to third in the U17 boys UK rankings for 800m after another top performance.

Representing his club Woodford & Essex Ladies AC in the Southern League last Saturday, the Mark Hall student won the men's 800m by more than the home straight, clocking 1min 55.3sec which boosted his UK ranking.

Zoe Benton, 16, jumped to the top of the UK for 300m hurdles in the U17 girls category.

Zoe ran an excellent 44.14 at Ashford, Kent in very windy conditions winning by some distance.

At Bedford, Sidnie Ward (12), a Burnt Mill student, competed in the Eastern Young Athletes League (EYAL) in his very first 1500m and won by 150m, recording 4min 40.5sec, a time that places him second in UK for U13 boys.

Harlow in narrow loss in cup as Baxter and new batsman offer hope

HARLOW suffered a narrow 17-run loss in their Dukes League Cup first round match.

In reply to Shepherd Neame Essex League Division Two rivals Fives & Heronians' score of 178, Rehman Ahmed's men eventually ran out of batsmen with 161 notched up.

Earlier, Fives had started their innings badly as Harlow picked up wickets.

Nicky Baxter proved their nemesis. His sensational five-for (5-23 from nine overs) had put paid to much of the top order.

But a mid-innings stand between Greg Summers (39) and Ali Raza (56) gave the hosts some momentum at The Paddock.

From 61-4 they moved to 158-6.

But the departure of these two brought a rapid close to their innings.

Harlow lost early wickets and were 56-6.

Luke Monger (23) and new signing Hafiz Yawar put on 66 for the seventh wicket, Baxter then hit a quick-fire 22 to offer Yawar further support.

Yawar, showed great resolve, scoring a solid 60, his third 50 plus score in as many matches for his new club.

But once Yawar and Baxter fell in quick succession the writing was on the wall.

Gracious Chapman – 'Needham deserved it'

Hawks miss out on title despite racking up 103 points

HAWKS boss Danny Chapman was the first to pay tribute to champions Needham Market as his side missed out on the title in heartbreaking circumstances.

"If you look at our season, what a season it's been. To have 103 points and have scored 108 goals and not been beaten in 41 league matches, but not win the league is quite astonishing. It's a successful season," said Chapman.

Despite Harlow's 2-1 win, Needham won 5-0 at Chatham to win the crown by a single point.

"We were never going to stop Needham, that was down to Chatham. We said before the game that as long as at 5pm we've got the three points we need then we couldn't have done anything else.

"I'd like to say fair play and congratulations to Mark Morsley and his team, because I've said all along that whoever sat on top of the league at 5pm [on Saturday] deserved to be there. So congratulations to them."

Chapman revealed he tried to keep the Needham Market score from his players, but it was an impossible task.

"As much as we tried to keep the Needham score away from the players they heard about it, and I think we came out in the second half and maybe looked a bit deflated. As far as I'm concerned there's nothing to be deflated about," added Chapman.

Striker Alex Read, back to full fitness and restored to the Hawks' starting line-up, showed exactly why he is so important to his team, as he bagged his 40th goal of the season after 24 minutes.

It was his 31st league goal of the season which saw him finish as the division's top scorer, despite his recent seven-week absence with a leg fracture.

Read fired in after a great run and cross from the impressive Hawks left-back Layne Eadie.

However, just seven minutes later, Tyrus Gordon-Young headed home to level the score, at exactly the same time as Needham opened the scoring at Chatham.

As their title rivals raced into a 3-0 half-time lead the news sucked some of the atmosphere out of the Harlow Arena, with more than 800 packing out the stadium.

A remarkable display of bravery from Thamesmead striker Gordon-Young saw his dislocated shoulder put back in after an incident in the first half.

After the break Read saw an effort hit the bar.

The winner came just past the hour.

Read found some space on the left and whipped a cross in which Leon Antoine got the merest of touches on with his head to send it into the bottom right corner on 62 minutes.

Boss praises 'fantastic' fans

NEARLY 850, mostly Hawks fans, turned out for Saturday's title decider, the largest gate of the season.

And boss Danny Chapman was quick to pay tribute to the supporters ahead of the club's play-off against Thurrock.

"It was fantastic to see the town really come out and support us," Chapman beamed.

"I'm not sure how many Thamesmead would have brought, but I wouldn't have thought it was a great amount, which means most them were from Harlow.

"The boys who stand behind us were fantastic with the singing, everyone was. The whole crowd showed great support. The boys appreciated that."

Chapman also had a word of praise for left-back Layne Eadie, who has played in every Ryman North game this season.

"I have to pay tribute to Layne. He's played in every single game this season," he said.

Speaking ahead of the play-off semi-final, striker Alex Read was hopeful of avoiding a fourth defeat.

"It drives me on. I don't want to be in that situation again. I know some of the boys who weren't here it will be different for them, but for the boys that were here we 100 per cent just want to push on, because I think this will be the fourth year I've been in the play-offs and I don't want to lose again," he said.

"Last season we went away twice then, won our first game and were focussed. Second game it didn't really work out."

Cricket

Neil rises to challenge as club's in the genes

Town's new skipper is looking for promotion in 2015

by Alan Scott

alan.scott@hertssexnews.co.uk

THE Gladwin name is synonymous with Stort, or its new name, Harlow Town Cricket Club, spanning five decades.

So it will be with a relish and huge pride that Neil Gladwin takes to the field for his first game as Harlow Town captain when their Shepherd Neame Essex League (SNEL) Division Two promotion quest gets off the ground on Saturday May 9 at home to Wickford.

Wicketkeeper-batsman Neil started his career at Stort, before spells at Sawbridgeworth and Saffron Walden.

The Walden team he graced during the 2000s was arguably one of the best in the South East, reaching national finals and winning Premier Division titles.

The Gladwin association with the Ash Tree Field club in Elizabeth Way began back in 1975 when Neil's father Martin started playing for the club.

Remained strong

The association has remained strong and even now Martyn is club president and Neil's brother Jason is second team captain.

Neil, who has played for Hertfordshire and the Essex second team, returned to his roots at the start of last season, playing a key role in the first team's promotion from the SNEL Division Three when they were piped for the title on the final day of a thrilling season.

He won't don the gloves this term due to the outstanding form of Pat Yates.

Neil says the team will certainly not be resting on its laurels or aiming for mid-table mediocrity – promotion is the sole objective.

"Having achieved our aim of promotion last year, we will set our aims at exactly the same again. I always believe that you need to set your expectations as high as possible, then if you don't quite meet them, you've still been successful," he said.

"Recruitment is always difficult at club level, especially when the club has taken, quite rightly in my opinion, the stance not to go down the paid players route.

"A number of players approached have all enquired about how much I can offer them, these conversations have been pretty short. This has been the frustrating part."

Gladwin's vice-captain is his long-standing friend and colleague Joe Holland, also previously skipper of both Sawbridgeworth and Saffron Walden.

Neil can see echoes of the successful Walden side that he skippered on two occasions after a successful spell playing in South Africa.

He helped Walden to the SNEL Premier Division title for three years running – 2003, 2004 and 2005.

They also won the National Club competition in 2002, defeating the cream of English club cricket.

They won the final at Edgbaston by beating a Barnt Green side which contained former Test player and left arm spinner Richard Illingworth.

He said: "There were eight players who were home grown or club stalwarts of that 2002 Saffron Walden National Cup-winning side.

"The current Harlow Town first team have at least eight players who have come through their ranks or have been there for a great number of years.

"This transforms into a great passion and desire from the players towards the club. I saw, felt and became part of that ingrained passion whilst at Saffron Walden and I can see it in the Harlow Town players."

The captain had huge words of praise for Town wicket-keeper Pat Yates, and claims he is the best glovesmen in the SNEL.

"Rarely in club cricket do you see somebody who could play at a much, much higher level. It was the first time I'd seen Pat keep wicket over a period of time last year and I've never seen anybody better," he enthused.

"Some of his performances wouldn't look out of place if they were on the Test match I'm watching.

Quick reflexes

"Wicket-keepers rarely get the adulation they deserve, but Pat deserves it all. Soft hands, good feet and quick reflexes. Not many better."

The skipper is expecting another mountain of runs from veteran batsman Ramya Upadaya.

"He has consistently been the first XI's leading run scorer and wicket taker and will once again be a crucial member," Neil said.

"Two more spinners make up our 'squad' of bowling, Ronnie Yates with his tall left arm guile and Shaun Alderson with his skiddier right arm offies leaves us with an excellent variety of options.

"The batting which on paper is our strength, needs to find more 'stars' this year.

"A powerful top six showed good consistency, with all players recording matchwinning scores, good averages and top ten cumulative aggregates for the league, but I want to see some of the guys dominate.

"All of our top six, Shiraz Ali, Ashley Alderson, Joe Holland, Ramya Upadaya, Pat Yates and myself have the ability to be that star, I want to see this happen."

There are a number of players who are in the mix for selection. Charlie Coleman and Scott Alderson will be pushing to make the step up to the first team. Simon Rowell was the leading wicket taker in the second team last year and will be banging on the door once again to earn promotion.

Neil added: "I'm looking forward to this season, we have everything in the right place and most importantly with have a keen club."

The club holds practice nights on Wednesdays at 6pm and welcome newcomers.

Alderson has a key role to play – Gladwin

HARLOW Town skipper Neil Gladwin is convinced his predecessor has a crucial role to play this season.

Ashley Alderson (pictured above) stepped down as captain after leading the side to promotion from Shepherd Neame Essex League Division Three last season.

A long-standing back injury means Alderson will not be bowling either, but Gladwin is sure the experienced batsman will play a major role in their fight for a second successive promotion.

"After a fantastic season for the entire club last year, it was disappointing to see Ashley Alderson stand down as captain," bemoaned Gladwin.

"He has been nurturing a chronic back problem for a number of years and was told by the doctor at the end of the season that he needed to give up bowling if he wanted to prolong his sporting activities.

"Due to this he took the decision to concentrate on cementing his place in the first team as a top order batter and didn't believe he could justify his selection at the start of the season.

Belief

"This belief is entirely unjustified as he has a rare ability to take games away from opposition in a matter of overs."

Meanwhile, Danny Calver has moved to Norfolk.

But new signings, bowlers Omar Ayaz and Jabir Iqbal, offer hope. "We are going into the season with a slightly different line-up to last year, certainly on the bowling front," Neil said.

"Omar Ayaz is an opening or first change bowler and Jabir Iqbal is an off spin bowler. Both have impressed over the winter and in their warm-up games and should provide us with options.

"Our opening bowler Daniel Farmer looks to have picked up a yard of pace of the winter and along with fellow left arm bowler Hasan Ali, we hope they will continue to improve."

Town produced a huge upset when they beat Hainault & Clayhall at home in their Dukes League Cup first round match of the season on Saturday.

Town found themselves finding first after losing the toss.

Mohammed Hassan Ali (58) and a quick fire 71 from Rehman pushed the Hainault score up to 236-5 after the allotted 45 overs.

Simon Rowell picked up two wickets.

Shiraz Ali (48) and Joe Holland (13) moved the score along at the required rate before an excellent 71 not out from Pates Yates steered Town towards victory.

The key partnership of 93 was between Yates and Daniel Farmer (40 not out).

Farmer finished the innings off in style with a straight six, completing the win with an over to spare and five wickets in hand.

Steel casts a spell on Magic JOSH STEEL completed a memorable campaign as he wrapped up promotion with his Kent Crusaders side to go with the National Basketball League Most Valuable Player award.

Steel (17), of The Hoo in Harlow, helped his team secure another comeback victory after taking over in the second half to beat Manchester Magic 77-67 in the Division One play-off final at the weekend.

The England U18 international led the revival as he cemented his status among the elite players of his generation by earning the MVP award with 25 points on 6-11 shooting from downtown, while Akwasi Yeboah added 20 points and seven rebounds.

GREAT SEASON: Josh Steel helped Kent seal promotion

The Crusaders had defeated Essex Leopards in the play-off semi-final the previous week.

He came up trumps in the third quarter with a couple of big-time three-pointers against Magic.

Kent battled back from a 41-33 half-time deficit.

Steel ended the game with 25 points and five rebounds.

Steel said: "Winning means everything. At the beginning of the season we were just looking to compete, but we got better with every game and were able to come and win the finals."

"I felt I shot the ball really well but to me it doesn't matter if I play well and we don't win. I'm more importantly happy with the win."

Steel has been heavily linked with a move to the United States, where the best basketball players in the world ply their trade in the NBA.

GOAL MACHINE'S VOW TO RETURN

Record-breaking striker determined to stay at Hawks

By Alan Scott

alan.scott@hertsessexnews.co.uk

ALEX READ came back with a bang for Hawks – and is already looking forward to playing for the Essex club next season.

The striker, the Ryman North top scorer for the second year running with 31 league goals despite a seven-week injury lay-off, loves playing for Harlow Town.

Read led a fightback against Needham Market with a goal when he came on as substitute 12 days ago.

He followed that up with a goal against Thamesmead Town in the 2-1 victory last Saturday.

Due to the Star's press deadlines, readers will need to log on to www.harlowstar.co.uk to find out how Danny Chapman's men got on in the play-off semi-final against Thurrock last night (Wednesday).

Read, speaking after Saturday's win, was modest about hitting more than 40 goals for the second season running.

He said: "I think I've just been in the right place at the right time. I do what my manager tells me and the boys just put it there.

"Obviously I've just got to score. It's what I do."

Read hit a phenomenal 52 goals last season, breaking Jeff Wood's club record from the 1989-90 campaign.

'I am tired'

He said: "Where I've had an injury and I've missed so many games it just makes me think 'could I have got anywhere near where I got last year from a goalscoring perspective?'"

Read knows he needs to get match fitness quickly.

"It's taken a while [to get sharp] and I can't lie I am tired. That was my first 90 minutes, but I'll get there," he said.

"I've just got to focus on our next games and get through them fit and whatever happens come back next year and crack on."

Hawks boss Danny Chapman was delighted with the performance of Read, playing his first full 90 minutes since February.

"He played a couple of games in the academy to get match fitness back, but he needed that, a proper game," he said.

"That's what he got [against Thamesmead] and he scored again. For someone that's been out for seven weeks, but still get 40 goals speaks for itself really."

If Harlow managed to beat Thurrock the final would be at The Harlow Arena on Sunday at 3pm. This would be against either AFC Sudbury in a repeat of the 2007 Ryman North play-off final, or close neighbours Brentwood Town.
